GARRETT SEEKS LIBERTY

Today

Congress, Once More
Russia, Busy, Wise
We Talk Well
Lo, the Poor Railroad

By Arthur Brisbane

CONGRESS IS AT WORK, with a big shadow on the wall labelled Muscle Shoals. Senator Norris, who wears no corporation harness, thinks a water power, built with the people's money, should be used for the people's benefit. That doesn't suit modern corporation government. Senator Norris probably will be disappointed.

The administration proposes to push the country into the World Court, without having said anything convincing as to the defects of our own Supreme Court, or what control or guidance we need from Europe.

Senator Borah and a few other men of conviction may postpone that proceeding a while.

Dr. Wilson, general secretary of the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church, objects to the reapportionment plan.

He wants to change the Constitutional provision that the number of Congressmen should depend on the number of people represented.

Russia resents the statement that eight expert engineers, confessing high treason, and implicating members of the British and French government, made their confession "after torture."

Britain and France, on the other hand, are indignant that Russian witnesses should accuse high officials of those countries of conspiring to overthrow the Russian government.

High officials are not such fools, and Russia, at this stage, would probably not torture witnesses, although the czars did it.

There is foolishness in the world's ideas of Russia, and, especially, in the supercilious attitude of some financiers.

Our government publishes names of the concerns that have been engaged with Russia in her marvelous industrial development and transformation under the five-year plan.

They are the Du Pont Co., the General Electric Co., the Henry Ford Co., and others of the greatest industrial organizations in the United States. Could Russia show greater intelligence than in selecting them? Don't underestimate Russia, whatever you think of her ideas. She may do to western industry what Mohammed almost did to western civilization and religion.

An "emergency committee for federal public works" emerges to remark that the depression is costing us $12,000,000,000 a year, and that use of our "war time technique" would turn that to gain.

Let's hope it wouldn't include the war time technique that spent a billion dollars on airships that wouldn't fly and more than a billion on floating ships that never went to sea and couldn't be given away when the war was over.

That "emergency committee" suggests spending a billion in removal of slums and vicious tenements among other things. That good suggestion will probably remain a suggestion. We are better at talking than we are at doing.

Meanwhile, the British, without talking about billions, actually propose to spend $125,000,000 to wipe out London slums.

Railroads demand "sweeping relief from competition." They would like to "curb" pipe lines now pumping oil once carried in railroad tank cars by railroads.

They would make the oil companies get rid of their $400,000,000 investment and would check coastwise shipping and canal freights. These things and others they DEMAND.

What they NEED is to bring their own methods up to date, stop hauling heavy trains weighing upwards of 1,000,000 pounds to carry 10,000 pounds of passengers to the last two or three stations.

Railroads have suffered, their passenger traffic has been cut almost in half, and whatever hurts railroads hurts the country.

The railroads will not find a remedy for their troubles in forbidding other business enterprises to employ modern methods. There is a limit to paternalism, even where important public utilities are concerned.

Stalin, strange, powerful creature, absolute dictator of Russia, who lives on two or three thousand dollars a year and spends billions on industry, analyzes European conditions thus. He says war is coming surely. The strong powers "will crush the weaker. When the weak ones are eliminated the big ones will fight each other."

That's what happens when you put big and little spiders into a bottle. First the big ones eat the little ones, then the big ones eat each other. Then there is one very big fat spider left.

It is assumed Rockne's physician had urged him not to endanger his none too robust health by coming here to coach a team into shape on a wintry gridiron.

BOSTON GOUGED BY RAILROADS

Higher rates are paid for shipping goods from Massachusetts points to Boston, less than half the distance, than are paid for shipping them from the same points to New York.

This was brought out today by Hugo Oberg, rate expert, at the rate hearing in the Chamber of Commerce building before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Under examination by Johnston B. Campbell, Boston's counsel, Oberg introduced a compilation of rates showing that Boston is being treated unfairly by railroads in comparison to rates accorded New York.

He testified that furniture is shipped from Gardner to New York, a distance of 196 miles, for 72½ cents a unit, as contrasted with 78 cents to $1.56 from Gardner to Boston, which is only 65 miles.

Ice cream freezers, he declared, are shipped from Winchendon to New York, 195 miles, for 50½ cents, compared with 53 cents to Boston, only 68 miles.

HOOVER SEEKS 150 MILLION TO AID IDLE

Tells Congress in His Message That U. S. Is Gaining in Unemployment Fight

Full text of President Hoover's message on Page 12.

International News Service Correspondent

Washington, Dec. 2—President Hoover reported to Congress today in his annual message that the country is making headway in its efforts to combat the economic depression, and that barring unforeseen setbacks "we will overcome world influences and will lead the march of prosperity as we have always done hitherto."

The message was mainly devoted to the business situation and what can be done to improve it. More will be accomplished by co-operative action in communities themselves, he said, than by any legislative action or executive pronouncement.

On prohibition and its enforcement, President Hoover said not a word. Presumably he left out all reference to prohibition because he is waiting for the report of the Wickersham commission, although he did not say so. In any event he ignored the subject completely.

It marked the first time in 10 years that a Presidential message has not had a great deal to say about it.

NEEDS $210,000,000.

The message as a whole sedulously avoided the submission of any controversial matters. Mr. Hoover wants this Congress to enact the necessary appropriation bills and adjourn in three months, leaving nothing hanging in midair that would necessitate calling a special session.

Two specific recommendations were made for congressional action to assist in the business recovery and relief of unemployment.

Mr. Hoover recommended that Congress appropriate $150,000,000

Washington, Dec. 2 (AP)—Chairman Graham of the House judiciary committee introduced legislation today making permanent 13 temporary district judgeships created in the last Congress. Two are in Massachusetts.

Walsh and Robinson Score Message as 'Weak'

Washington, Dec. 2 (AP)—President Hoover's message to Congress today roused varying reactions on Capitol hill, Republicans in general praising its views and recommendations. The Democrats were not so enthusiastic.

SENATOR WALSH, Democrat, Massachusetts—The message is a virtual abdication of leadership in a great economic crisis. It offers no constructive program whatever. It is negative where it should be positive. It seems to me to lack both courage and convictions. The absence of a specific program to attempt to relieve the present economic collapse in the nation presents an opportunity for the leaders of the Democratic party in the Congress to formulate a definite legislative program.

REPRESENTATIVE LUCE, Republican, Massachusetts—A remarkably good message. His discussion of the depression and of unemployment was particularly sane and helpful. I hope it will contribute toward making the masses understand the facts of the case.

SPEAKER LONGWORTH—I think the message was a very interesting document. I liked the review of the business conditions. It was very encouraging.

On the Senate side, Democratic Leader Robinson said the message disclosed a comprehensive study of the situation but was not complete.

SENATOR HARRISON, Democrat, Mississippi—The message showed the President to have no conception of existing conditions throughout the country.

REPRESENTATIVE TILSON, Majority Leader—The message was very timely and very sound. If we keep within the terms of it we will do everything possible there is to do.

REPRESENTATIVE PURNELL, Republican, Indiana—The message impressed me very much.

REPRESENTATIVE RANKIN, Democrat, Alabama—It was "a disappointment."

Congress and the President

What makes the President think that Congress will not act with proper expedition?

It is not Congress that has been indulging in a lot of futile talk unaccompanied by action of any useful kind.

It is not Congress that has been appointing a lot of alibi commissions to consume time and avoid achievement.

It is not Congress that has been devoting the major part of its time and attention to trying to get the United States into foreign entanglements when domestic problems were crying for solution.

Congress is not responsible for the bad times.

The only complaint about Congress is that it has been too much under the thumb of the executive.

Congress has been bullied, misled, and, in such vital matters as the British naval treaty, even actually deceived.

If the executive will let Congress alone it will attend to American affairs with customary American speed.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

SENATOR DAVIS IS SWORN IN

Washington, Dec. 2 (INS)—James J. Davis, whose resignation as Secretary of Labor became effective today, was sworn in as U. S. senator from Pennsylvania shortly after noon today, despite an effort to prevent his being sworn because of the expenditures made in the Pennsylvania primary last May.

The effort to keep Davis from being sworn was made by Senator Gerald P. Nye, Republican, of North Dakota, chairman of the Senate committee which investigated the expenditures. It was a short-lived effort, for Davis took the oath within a comparatively few minutes after Nye had moved that "the Senator-elect from Pennsylvania stand aside." Senator Reed of Pennsylvania asked that the rights of his State be preserved.

NYE RESOLUTION FAILS

The Senate rejected the resolution sponsored by Senator Nye barring Davis from the oath. Then the Pennsylvanian without further ado was sworn into the seat which was denied William S. Vare two years ago.

The vote on the Nye resolution denying Davis the oath was 27 to 58. Eighteen Democrats joined with 40 Republicans in supporting Davis' right to the oath. This Democratic support was due to a decision reached earlier by the Democratic steering committee that

PRIEST, MASONS AID SHEPARD

Kansas City, Dec. 2 (AP)—Defense counsel have disclosed that a Catholic priest's appeals to Masons helped in raising a $2,000 defense fund for Maj. Charles A. Shepard, army medical officer, who goes to trial in federal court Thursday, charged with the fatal poisoning of his second wife, Mrs. Zenana Shepard.

Harry S. Class of Denver, chief defense counsel, said more than 300 persons all over the United States had contributed.

The Rev. Fr. J. H. O'Neill, army chaplain stationed at the Fitzsimons General Hospital, Denver, where Maj. Shepard has worked while at liberty on bond, sent letters to Masons, saying in part:

"Major Shepard's funds are very low. His brother officers are helping him to the limit of their abilities. I am making this appeal to you, a Mason, without Maj. Shepard's knowledge or consent.

"He is overwhelmed, crushed and broken by a serious charge, coming at the close of a lifetime devoted to the care of the sick and suffering. In this crisis, where a human life is in jeopardy, I have undertaken this appeal to those who should come to his aid in his hour of need."

The government's claim that Miss Grace Brandon, 22, San Antonio stenographer, was the unwilling recipient of gifts from Major Shepard may be countered, the defense indicated, by presentation of a photograph alleged to have been given by her to Major Shepard. On this picture is inscribed "With much love to my sweetheart, from Grace."

Miss Brandon will be called as a witness for the prosecution.

HIS WIFE AND MRS. HATCH AT JAIL TO SEE HIM

Officials Try to Find Source of Money That Supported Him in His Flight

Mrs. Florence Garrett and Mrs. Lillian V. Hatch went to Charles st. jail today and held a long conference with Oliver B. Garrett, returned defaulter, over the coming trial in which all three will be defendants on extortion or other charges.

Accompanying them were Atty. Herbert F. Callahan, counsel for the defense, and Mrs. Allen Wood, Jr., pretty daughter of Mrs. Garrett by her first marriage.

Statements by Callahan before the conference indicated that possibly he will go into Superior Court tomorrow to ask that Garrett be released on bail.

The arrival of the three women took jail attaches completely by surprise, but under advance instructions by Sheriff John A. Keliher they were careful to extend them only the regular courtesies, no more and no less.

Mrs. Hatch, who was formerly in charge of the check room at the old Hotel Ritz in the South End, arrived first with the attorney. She went directly upstairs under the guidance of a jail attendant, leaving Callahan below to await Mrs. Garrett.

BIG BUNDLE FOR GARRETT

When the wife of the former liquor raider arrived with her daughter, she was carrying a large bundle of food and clothing, wrapped in brown paper. She was stylishly dressed and smiling, nodding to newspapermen whom she recognized, but refusing to answer questions.

Her bundle was inspected and then she was allowed to go upstairs with Mrs. Wood and the lawyer. The conference took place in a room reserved for such use. As it was a conference with a lawyer present, there was no restriction as to time, except that it must be over by the supper hour.

HIS FRIEND SOUGHT.

Asked if he would bring the bail issue up tomorrow, Callahan said:

"I don't know yet; possibly."

"Have you got sureties in sight?"

"Well, I don't know as to that."

While state alienists prepared today to examine Garrett at the jail, police launched an investigation of salient features of the story of his

MRS. GARRETT ON VISIT TO JAIL TAKES BIG BUNDLE TO HUSBAND

BATTLE FOR BAIL MAY BE STARTED

The authorities especially wish to know the name of the friend who co-operated in his flight and return and who, according to the ex-liquor raider's story, was his companion in an eight-hour drinking bout at a Back Bay hotel the night before Garrett surrendered.

Another matter under investigation is the source of the funds with which the former czar of the police liquor raiders roamed about the country for nearly six months.

Garrett's salary as a policeman was $2100 a year, or $40.38 a week, and from October, 1929, to May of this year he received only half pay—the pension which Mayor Curley ordered stopped. He fled in June.

Drinking plays a prominent part in Garrett's recital of his flight and return, culminating in a party in a room at a Boston hotel which he went to from his hideout in Franklin shortly after midnight Sunday.

The friend who had met him on his return to Providence from the South, and who was the only one besides his wife who knew of his intention to surrender, as Garrett put it, awaited him in a room at this hotel, and according to Garrett's story they ate sandwiches and drank until 3 a. m. Sunday. The next 12 hours they spent in sleeping it off.

GARRETT SLEEPS WELL

Garrett slept quietly through the night, according to Deputy Sheriff James G, Morris, on duty at the jail.

He was up and dressed at 6 o'clock and breakfasted on the regular jail fare of cereal, bread and coffee. At 11 he went to the cafeteria again along with the other inmates and ate hamburg steak, mashed potatoes, beets, bread and coffee.

He ate heartily and did not complain about his lack of teeth, which were removed shortly before he ran away and which he did not dare to have replaced while a fugitive, for fear he would be recognized by the dentist. He chatted freely with his table companions during his meals. Most of the day was spent reading and smoking in his cell.

Dr. Abraham Myerson, noted psychiatrist, and Dr. James V. May, superintendent of the Boston State Hospital, were expected to begin their examination of the prisoner's mentality late today.

A room on the upper floor of the wing in which Garrett's cell is situated was selected for the examination. The examination may take an hour or a month, under the law, but the doctors said it would be brief unless Garrett by refusal to answer questions prolonged it.

He will be especially examined as to prejudices, hallucinations or delusions, and a report made to Dist. Atty. William J. Foley prior to the start of his trial on extortion charges, which is now scheduled for the middle of the present month.

He asserts he likes jail better than the hideout in his cottage at Franklin, where he says he lay cooped under the eaves for five weeks.

The Franklin cottage was guarded by two roughly dressed men today. They both had apparently slept there, as they were rubbing their eyes sleepily when reporters called. The only other occupant was an elderly woman who fled to another room after opening the door and sent the men out to scowl at the visitors.

Rounding up of 62 government witnesses is going on while the district attorney awaits the report of the alienists.

SPEEDY TRIAL SOUGHT

Garrett was described as "psycho-neurotic" by city physicians who examined him in connection with his police pension. He was examined by a neurologist on orders of former Police Commissioner Wilson last January, but has never been examined by a psychiatrist.

Dist. Atty. Foley is anxious for a speedy trial and is determined that Garrett shall be kept in jail until his trial opens. It has been tentatively set for Dec. 15, but may open in Suffolk Court next Monday.

If Garrett remains in jail, he must be given a trial this month, under the law, unless he seeks postponement in writing.

Should the mental examination at the jail prove Garrett is sane, and if the witnesses in the case are rounded up this week, there is a strong possibility that the case will open next Monday.

Judge David Dillon, orginally assigned to the trial is at present on circuit in Springfield and it is unlikely he will be called back to Boston. At Springfield yesterday, Judge Dillon said he had no idea whether or not he would be reassigned to the trial.

Judge William Burns and Judge Harold Williams are assigned to the criminal session of the Suffolk superior court for the current sitting and it is likely that either one of them will be chosen.

DOYLE AND FOLEY CONFER

Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle, who prepared the case against Garrett and will prosecute him, conferred with Dist. Atty. Foley yesterday. The round-up of witnesses in the case began after this conference.

As far as could be learned, all the 62 witnesses in the case will be available, barring unexpected complications. A 24-hour-a-day police guard has been assigned to the home of John F. Sullivan proprietor of the defunct Hotel Ritz and star government witness, by Dist. Atty. Foley.

Garrett will be tried with his wife, and Mrs. Hatch, formerly cloakroom attendant at the Hotel Ritz, on indictments charging extortion and conspiracy to extort. Garrett is also charged with larceny from the city of Boston in connection with his police pension.

The mental examination of Garrett will be under orders from Dr. Wilfred Overholser, acting commissioner of the State Department of Mental Diseases.

JUDGE ORDERED TEST

The examination is made as provided by the Briggs Law that all persons indicted more than once for a felony must be given a mental test. Judge Dillon ruled last spring that under this law, Garrett must be examined. Drs. Mays and Myerson were named as the examining physicians at that time.

The examination may last for 30 days before submission of a report by the examining physicians to the clerk of the court. This report is a public document.

Should Garrett be found insane he could either be brought to trial before a jury and found not guilty on grounds of insanity, or committed to a hospital for the insane and brought back for trial when and if he were found sane by the state department of mental diseases.

Relations between police headquarters and the district attorney's office are still somewhat strained due to Garrett's being booked at the Charles st. jail instead of being brought to headquarters to be fingerprinted and photographed. Garrett has never been photographed and fingerprinted in connection with the case.

Sheriff Keliher was somewhat upset over statements of other officials that there was no reason to send Garrett into court yesterday. He explained that it is necessary when a defaulter surrenders to ask the court fo[illegible] order of commitment and [illegible] customary when asking for [illegible] ent the prisoner to the co[illegible]

Dexter, Me., to New York, 502 miles, and on the same goods shipped from Dexter to Boston, the same charge of 63½ cents is made, although Boston is less than half the distance.

Chairs shipped from Winchendon to New York, 195 miles, are rated at 82½ cents, as contrasted with 79½ cents to $1.59 when shipped to Boston, a distance of but 68 miles.

INJURES PORT, TOO

Walter W. McCoubrey, connected with the Boston Port Authority, testified that Boston is handicapped in its port business because of the insufficiency of cargo offeringshere that make possible direct sailings from Boston to European ports without the necessity of calling at other American ports to complete cargoes.

The volume of tonnage offered at New York makes direct sailings from that port possible, he said, and explained that trunk line railroads maintain active solicitation in the West, causing freight to be routed via New York, the railroads then enjoying benefits of the long hauls.

As a result of the frequent sailings, he declared, New York has built up a system of low cost and free services, such as free lighterage.

Non-uniformity of wharfage and dockage charges often works to the disadvantage of Boston also, he asserted.

Boston scored a victory at the opening of the second day of the case when an amended complaint alleging further rail discrimination was allowed.

This was prepared by Samuel Silverman, corporation counsel, and Atty. Campbell, senior counsel, and was vigorously opposed by New York.

Boston, through this amendment, has vastly broadened its case to include other charges relating to in-transit-storage and wharfage.

This new situation involves many millions of dollars of posible future revenue to Boston and New England, if the commission recognizes the soundness of Boston's argument.

For instance, New York has the practice of allowing storage of grain virtually free for many months and then shipping this product abroad when the demand arises. Boston does not have this practice, and consequently is penalized.

WOULD AID PORTS.

If New York is forced to make a change in its storage policy, a great amount of new business would be attracted to other Atlantic ports.

The new amendment reads:

"That through and by means of affording free storage in-transit and exemption from demurrage on freight, such freight being transported to and (or) from the Port of New York district afforded, or to be afforded free lighterage services by the defendants at the port of New York district, and through denial of similar free privileges in-transit on similar freight transported by the defendants to and (or) from the Port of Boston, said defendant give undue preference and advantage to said Port of New York district and to said freight traffic and shippers thereof handled through said Port of New York district and subject the complainants and said similar traffic and competing shippers thereof to undue prejudice and disadvantage in violation of section three of the Interstate Commerce Act."

CITES BOSTON ADVANTAGE

McCoubrey developed the angle that Boston has no free lighterage service, such as Boston alleges New York provides in the discriminations outlined in the case.

"Fully 95 per cent of all cargoes landed in Boston are loaded directly to cars or trucks at the dock," he explained.

Grain shippers who would like to utilize this port, one day nearer Europe than any other port, find the rate differentials an insurmountable obstacle, it was testified by Gerrett Forte, president of the Raymond Whitcomb Co., chairman of the Maritime Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce and, until 1927, a vice-president of the Boston & Maine railroad.

Forte asserted that because Boston cannot get the base cargo grain other shippers in export lines would not use the port.

He would be satisfied, he said, that Boston, Baltimore and Philadelphia have the same rates if the rate of New York were higher than these.

EINSTEIN URGES JEWS TO BAND FOR POWER

"Aggressive Anti-Semitism" in European Countries Cited by Noted Scientist

New York, Dec. 2 (AP)—A message from Prof. Albert Einstein, urging Jews to strengthen their "self-consciousness and solidarity" in the face of "aggressive anti-semitism" in European countries, was made public today by the Zionist organization of America.

The message, the Zionists said, was intended as a greeting to American Jewry on the occasion of the Maccabean festival, to be held here December 13.

Expressing "deep disappointment at the attitude taken to Palestine by the British government and its bureaucratic officials," Prof. Einstein said the reaction to it by Jews the world over "is proof of their indissoluble bond with the upbuilding of Palestine."

"We Jews," he said, 'are everywhere subject to attacks and humiliations that result from the exaggeration of nationalism and racial vanity, which, in most European countries, expresses itself in the form of aggressive anti-Semitism. In such a time we Jews must strengthen our self-consciousness and solidarity. This can be obtained in no other way than united participation in the rebuilding of the Jewish national home in Palestine."

Antwerp, Belgium, Dec. 2 (AP)—Prof. Albert Einstein and Frau Einstein left here today aboard the Belgenland for the United States.

"I want this to be a recreation," he said. "I am going to visit friends and El Paso observatory. I have no intention to work while I am in the states, but intend to discuss with my American friends questions in which we are mutually interested.

MRS. MILLER'S OWN STORY

Havana, Dec. 2 (AP)—Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, who was forced down in the Bahamas during a flight from Havana to New York, today gave the Associated Press the first story of her adventurous experience.

"A terrific gale blew me off my course somewhere between Havana and the mainland," she said. "Then my compass went haywire and I flew seven hours looking for a place to land.

"The gas began to run low and I got panicky. I didn't know whether I was in the gulf of Mexico or somewhere over the Atlantic.

"It was a fearful relief when I did see a spot of land. I thought it was Florida.

"But it was this village, called Kemps Bay, on Andros Island. There was a terrific wind, but I came in with full motor, then stalled her and pancaked into the thick bushes. I looked the ship over and it was O. K.

"I started out to walk and it was 16 miles to the first telegraph station I came to. I walked all night over the rockiest beach I ever saw. My feet were blistered and I was mighty tired. I am sorry I can't send you more."

That last reference was to the telegram in which this interview was contained. The aviatrix sent it by wireless from Nassau to Miami and it went thence by cable to the Associated Press Bureau at Havana.

British Flier Goes to Get Mrs. Miller

Miami, Fla., Dec. 2 (AP)—Capt. W. N. Lancaster, a British flier, took off today from Nassau, Bahamas, to refuel the plane of Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, which came down on Andros Island, and return the ship and the Australian aviatrix to this country.

RITTNER, Otto, New Britain, Ct.

BINGHAM, GOSS PUT IN 4 P. C. BEER BILLS

Anti-Dry Bloc Formed in the House Is Called to Caucus by Linthicum

Washington, Dec. 2 (AP)—Sale of four per cent beer would be permitted under bills introduced today by Senator Bingham, Republican, Connecticut, and Rep. Goss, a Republican from the same state.

They also would permit physicians to prescribe malt liquors for medicinal purposes up to one-half pint of alcohol per person every 10 days.

Enemies of prohibition in the House will hold a caucus tomorrow.

The call for the wet caucaus came from Rep. Linthicum, Democrat, Maryland, who last session generalled the anti-prohibition bloc, managing the wet presentation of evidence at the lengthy dry law hearings of the judiciary committee.

LOOKING TO NEXT YEAR

He plans an aggressive campaign for modification or repeal, starting at this session, but with the next Congress principally in mind. The wets are confident they will have superior strength in the Congress that meets next year.

The proposition of modification or repeal, however, contained the wide alternative which has made difficult in the past the forming of a strong wet coalition. The variety of methods proposed in the new bills reflected anew some of the differences existing in the minds of the wet and moist members.

LIKE ANDREWS' PLAN

Representative McLeod, Republican, Michigan, is the author of a new proposal for amending the Constitution to legalize the manufacture of liquor for "use in homes and places of abode." He also sought a national referendum on the Eighteenth Amendment.

The latter also is the objective of the resolution offered by Representative Andrew, Republican, Massachusetts, who proposed allowing the states seven years for ratification by conventions.

100 POLICE IN XMAS SQUAD

A special squad of nearly 100 men was named today by Police Commissioner Eugene C. Hultman to protect Christmas shoppers from thefts and also to safeguard the large holiday stocks of Boston merchants.

Co-operation of the public was asked by the police head in his announcement of the appointment of the squad. He said:

"Due to the large number of people visiting the city, and shopping, during the holidays season, as well as pressure of business upon merchants and others delivering goods, special efforts will be made to arrest pickpockets, shop lifters, and hand bag snatchers.

"To make this work of its important value, the public must cooperate, being especially careful and reporting any suspicious persons. They should report them to the nearest officer in uniform, or call police headquarters at Kenmore 6700."

Bill Awaited Marion at Hotel Instead of Trunk

New York, Dec. 2—Marion Roberts, chorus girl who was with Jack (Legs) Diamond when he was shot on Oct. 12, ran into more Diamond trouble yesterday.

Marion Roberts

Free in $500 bail as a material witness to the shooting she called at the hotel for her trunk.

She was shocked when the clerk handed her a bill for $275 for her seven weeks' tenancy there—an expense her gangster cavalier had promised to defray.

Marion explained to police after the shooting that when she was rehearsing in August for a musical show and receiving no money, Legs had told her to move to the Monticello and he would take care of the bill.

The hotel still holds the trunk.

Mrs. W. N. Doak

When Doak appeared at the Labor Department yesterday to take over his new duties only to find he had to await Senate confirmation, Mrs. Doak was with him, mixing with the labor leaders, shaking hands and receiving messages from far states where she had appeared with her husband.

"I know all these men almost as well as he does," she said. "We've worked among them for almost 30 years."

Evelyn Laye

"Some of the film people are charming and kind," said the English musical comedy star, "but they don't get away from Hollywood often enough.

"The film colony, like all America, doesn't know how to balance work and play, but it keeps cropping up in the minds of Americans.

"Film folk will throw a grand party at night to forget all about the day's labor and then someone will say 'what did you think of that shot today?' In no time the conversation turns to work."

LEAGUE COURT ISSUE BIG PROBLEM CONFRONTING SENATORS

SUPPORTERS SEEK DELAY FOR YEAR

Hoover Decides to Submit a Protocol to the Senate Within Few Days

Washington, Dec. 2 (AP)—Submission of the world court protocol to the senate within a few days has been decided upon by President Hoover.

Washington, Dec. 2—How to dispose of the League Court protocol without stripping the gears of the Senate machinery at this session remained today one of the most serious problems.

Supporters of American adherence to the international tribunal have started a move for postponement of the issue until a year hence. Some of its opponents want it given immediate attention. The question of adherence is not yet before the Senate, but President Hoover has announced he will submit it shortly.

Senator Borah of Idaho, chairman of the foreign relations committee, has announced his committee will act on the protocol if the President sends it up. Senator Watson of Indiana, Republican leader, fears a fight over the court will force an extra session and has conferred with Borah, but neither had any decision to report.

Senator Swanson of Virginia, ranking Democrat on the Borah committee, is one of those who seek the year's delay. He is a strong supporter. Senator Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, also a committee member, is another favoring deferment.

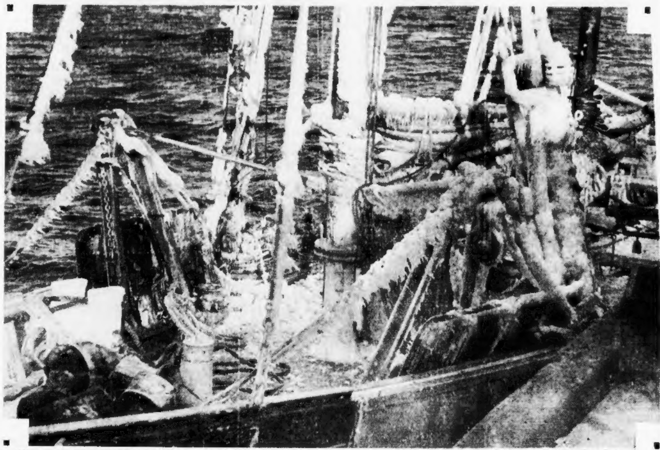
Winter's Icy Fingers Weave New Rig for Fisherman



IN FROM THE FISHING GROUNDS. Weighted down with a capacity load of fish and by tons of ice, the dragger Edith R. Bendreau docked at the fish pier from the South Channel grounds early today. Running into strong winds and high running seas on the trip back from the grounds, the Bendreau was coated so heavily with ice from falling spray that she looked like a ghost as she moved up the harbor. It was a chilly crew that left the dragger when it docked at the pier. (Staff photo.)

'WAR' ON SOVIET IS EXPOSED

By STANTON B. LEEDS

Universal Service Special Cable

(Copyright, 1930, Universal Service, Inc.)

Paris, Dec. 2—The "confession" of Prof. Leonid Ramzin, on trial in Moscow for revolutionary activity, involving former French President Poincare and Foreign Minister Briand in a plot to invade soviet Russia this year, was blown to bits today.

In his "confession" Prof. Ramzin named Paul Riabouchinsky as go-between in negotiations for conspirators and French officials in 1927 and 1928. Ramzin's whole accusation alleging that Poincare and Briand offered three years ago to attack the soviet is based on the "negotiations" of Riabouchinsky.

Paul Riabouchinsky died on July 19, 1924, three years before he is said to have had relations with Poincare and Briand.

"Paul knew these unfortunate people, but I know that he did not see them after 1917, when he was stricken with tuberculosis.

"I know it was impossible for him to have left his bed to engage in any activity.

"In accusing Paul, the Soviets overlooked the date of his death. Such testimony as Ramzin's is absurd.

"These accused people are being blamed for not doing in five years what is possible only in 10 or even more years. The five-year plan could not succeed.

Bribery and Graft Bared in Conspirators' "Confession"

Moscow, Dec. 2 (AP)—Leonid Ramsin, "arch plotter" of the eight men on trial for working to overthrow the Soviet government, today told how he and his men spied on Soviet industries and passed their information to the French general staff. The four judges had ruled only a few days ago that there would be no more mention of "friendly foreign governments."

Ramsin said he and his associates passed every kind of information about the Soviet industrial development to a "certain French institution in Moscow."

In the suburbs much colder temperatures were reported, Burlington and Bedford taking readings of 10, with 11 recorded at Lexington, and an official minimum of 12 in Concord, early this morning.

The unofficial forecast: Fair tonight and Wednesday; slightly cooler tonight; decreasing northwesterly winds.

Policeman Too Hearty, Reds Bolt Party

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Police were courteous. As they cracked Reds over the head they said:

"Please be seated."

Speaker Nick Longworth made a speech to the Communists:

"Don't fight outside like ruffians.

"Come inside and fight like gentlemen."

No congressmen got into the hit-and-run session.

Politics is not an outdoor sport.

Communists lost their game. But threaten to come back with the Southern California line and the Notre Dame backfield.

Policeman got excited and fired his revolver. He must have thought he was home.

The voting at the end was unanimously for law and order.

WIFE TELLS OF RIPPING SHIRT OFF THAYER

Was Crazed When She Found Him With Another Woman, Says Mrs. Thayer

Worcester, Dec. 2—After testifying to finding her husband with Miss Anita Girouard, Mrs. Jane H. Thayer nearly collapsed in the Thayers' cross-action divorce hearing today.

Judge Harry H. Atwood, noticing that Mrs. Thayer was weakening, declared a recess while she was revived.

A short time before she burst into tears when recounting the alleged cruelty of her husband, Fred B. Thayer, during the illness and death of her mother.

TELLS OF BLACK EYES

The episode involving Thayer and Miss Girouard was in August of 1829, the witness testified, when she was suffering from neuritis. Her husband had summoned Miss Girouard to help out in the house, after blackening his wife's eyes because she could not walk, she said.

Mrs. Thayer testified she went into a room and found her husband with Miss Girouard.

"I grabbed Mr. Thayer and tore the night short off him," she testified, "and asked him what he meant by doing a thing like that."

She had previously painted a vivid picture of her husband as constantly under the influence of liquor and forced to relinquish his business.

Mrs. Thayer brought out for the first time that her husband's mother set him up in the poultry business in 1925, but as a chicken fancier he was not a success

BLACK AND WHITE ENSEMBLE

The witness made a striking appearance on the stand, her black georgette dress and tight black velvet hat being relieved by white lace at her wrists. She wore a black onyx cross dangling from a long gold chain about her neck.

Before Mrs. Thayer began her testimony Atty. Frank B. Hall for her husband entered his formal protest at her late arrival, together with that of Albert Desjardin, the chauffeur named by Thayer

The couple were half an hour late and Judge Atwood censured them.

MANY CANCERS LAID TO POOR NUTRITION

Teeth Are Also Blamed for the Growths on Lips and Skin by Radiological Experts

Los Angeles, Dec. 2 (AP)—Local lesions and a general drop in nutrition as a whole were described here today before the Radiological Society of North America as the apparent causes of spontaneous cancer.

The statement was made in an address before the assembled scientists by Dr. Montrose T. Burrows, Pasadena specialist, who said too that dead or abscessed teeth frequently had been associated with the state of deterioration necessary for the development of cancer. His studies indicated teeth were the cause of cancer of the lips and skin.

TEETH NOT ALL AT FAULT

"Other tissues showing similar degenerative changes may also produce the same effect as dead teeth," said Dr. Burrows.

"Removal of the teeth alone has led to the spontaneous disappearance of cancer of the lips and skin in a few instances.

"In several cases senile keratoses (tough, horny growths) have disappeared completely after the removal of abscessed teeth and use of a good dietary.

"Tumors of the breast have been associated in each instance with uterine lesion. Such breast lesions may exist and progress for years without any material harm to the individual.

COME FROM WEAKEST SPOT

"Cancer will develop in these lesions only when the normal cells of the body without have suffered from a sufficient lowering of their resistance to allow the breast cells to grow."

Those Wonderful Toys

WHEN we were young enough to wonder how Santa kept his whiskers so white with so many sooty chimneys in the neighborhood, Toys were our Big Moment at Christmas-time. When we displayed our presents to the kids next door, the Toys were shown first and then the mittens from Aunt Mary.

Toys are still a big part of a child's Christmas. Modern toys are more practical and interesting than the gewgaws of not so long ago. In Boston's leading stores in the Toyland realms of Santa Claus you will find thousands of Toys to develop children's minds and bodies—Toys for every age and step of their development. At least one trip through these amazing Toylands should be planned for the youngsters. And it will help you to conspire with Santa in putting over something in a big way on Christmas morn.

PARLEY ON MINE STRIKE FAILS

Glasgow, Scotland, Dec. 2 (AP)—Union delegates representing 90,000 striking Scottish coal miners today decided to continue the strike despite efforts to attain a temporary agreement with mine owners.

Failure of this delegates' conference to reach any kind of agreement was regarded as particularly menacing to the country's coal industry. It has been recognized this conference would determine to a large extent whether the Scottish strike might extend to other coal areas.

It had been thought extremely important the Scottish mines be working by Tuesday, so a conference of national union delegates meeting at London would not be forced to take a vote on the question of a national strike.

December is the happy month—the time of mistletoe and holly—the time when kindliness rules the world and the greatest pleasure is derived in lending a helping hand to those less fortunate.

When you buy Christmas gifts for your own dear ones, you will have the additional satisfaction of knowing that someone, unseen, has been aided by each purchase.

Buy as generously as you can afford—1st, for the joy of giving, 2nd, for the happiness of the recipient and, 3rd, for the sake of those who are being helped financially, by your thoughtfulness.

WOMAN FACING DEATH PENALTY

Denver, Colo., Dec. 2 (AP)—Mrs. Pearl O'Loughlin, charged with the murder of her 10-year-old stepdaughter Leona, today faced 12 jurors who said they would not hesitate to impose the death penalty on a woman if they believed her guilty of first degree murder.

Earl Wettengel, outlining his case to the jury said Mrs. O'Loughlin had "admitted the act." Under Colorado law, the jury in a first degree murder case may decide whether the penalty shall be hanging or life imprisonment.

The body of Leona O'Loughlin was found in a city park lake two days after she had disappeared from her home. An autopsy showed ground glass in her viscera. Frank O'Loughlin, the girl's uncle, is also charged with her slaying.

DEVICE DOOMS MONOXIDE

New York, Dec. 2—An invention designed to eliminate wasteful and deadly carbon monoxide, increase motor efficiency and save more than $1,000,000,000 annually in engine fuel bills, went into the practical application stage today as a result of an airplane pilot's death in 1928.

The pilot was the younger son, Harold, of Dr. Miller Reese Hutchinson, chief engigeer for Thomas A. Edison for nine years and inventor of the "Moto-Vita," or carbon monoxide eliminator.

Capt. Frank Hawks, flying speed king, will test the device on his flight to Memphis Thursday. It can be produced at nominal cost, is attached to the motor and registers on a dial the percentage of unburned gases escaping. The operator then is enabled to increase the quantity of air in the fuel mixture.

Society Leaders Attend Opening of Passion Play

THE OPENING NIGHT OF The Passion Play was an impressive success. Every seat in the house was taken and an appreciative audience sat quietly through a long performance, rising reverently and remaining standing during the final Hallelujah. In spite of the stupendous undertaking, the performance was enacted without a pause, except for a short intermission, and to the casual observer all went as smoothly as though it were being performed on a familiar stage and not in a foreign land.

SOCIETY WAS OUT IN NUMBERS and during the brief intermission we glimpsed Mrs. Wilbur Grant, smiling and gracious in spite of weeks of hard work on the publicity committee; Mrs. Thomas Motley, Jr., and Mrs. George Warren, all of whom were in boxes with friends. Not missing anything and never being missed, even in a large crowd, was Mrs. George S. West, in ivory lace with chinchilla wrap, with her daughter, Miss Dorothy. Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller was charming in white chiffon with black Chantilly lace and Mrs. Walter Bucklin was attractive in black velvet.

ANOTHER MEMBER OF THE committee, Mrs. James Nelson was greeting friends as though she, too, had a large part of the undertaking on her fair shoulders. She was very pretty in black velvet. Many of the young members were there, among them Miss Rosamond Rust in black lace and white fox wrap. Other boxholders were Mrs. Norman Greeley, Mrs. Robert Shaw, Mrs. Matthew Whittall, who was in cloth of silver, Mrs. Robert Sayles and Mrs. Charles Weld. The play continues every night for the ensuing two weeks.

DR. AND MRS. JOHN BRYANT have sold their house on Marlborough st., and have settled on Coolidge Hill in Cambridge. They spent the summer abroad.

MRS. B. DEVEREAUX PARKER is visiting in New York for a few days, going over for the premiere of Pola Frijsh.

Lady Astor's Manless Party Not Manless After All

No men were invited and even a woman's orchestra will provide music for the gay affair, but a corps of suave men in black tail coats will be hovering in the background of the American born member of Parliament's home. They are the waiters necessary to serve the dinner, and in the excitement of seeing the affair strictly feminine were overlooked.

"Now, I say, that's too bad," said Lady Astor's butler when the error was pointed out. "The parlor maids should have been organized for service."

At the dinner will be 36 of Britain's most distinguished women, and about 400 more will be present at the reception following.

Among the dinner guests will be Amy Johnson, plucky British girl who flew to Australia; Miss Edith Major, mistress of Girton College, Miss D. Peto, woman's head of Scotland Yard; Prof. Winifred Cullis, physiologist; Miss Geraldine Jebb, principal of Bedford College for Women; Helen Fraser, department store manager; Miss I. Stoney, solicitor; Venetia Stephenson, barrister.

Lady Shafi and the Begum Shah Nawaz, delegates to the Indian round-table conference; Lady Rhonnda, editor and corporation director; Rose Macaulay, novelist; Mrs. Oliver Strachey, writer and feminist; Dame Edith Lyttleton, League of Nations delegate.

Dinner is to be served in the great dining room of Lady Astor's home in St. James sq. Large masses of red chrysanthemums will be the decoration. There will be no speeches at the dinner.

Essay Prize For Cape Woman

Mrs. Nelson Bearse of Barnstable Gives Recipe for Proper Leisure

By NANCY BREWSTER

The winning essay of Massachusetts in the contest conducted by the General Federation of Women's Clubs this year on "The Right Use of Leisure" was written by Mrs. Nelson Bearse of the Barnstable Woman's Club.

Mrs. Fred B. Cross, chairman of Community Service of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs, make the announcement.

The contest was open to all clubwomen in the country, the subject being the keynote stressed during the previous administration. That the right use of leisure offers many problems, the clubwomen agreed. Hence they set out to correct the fallacies.

BAY STATE WINNER

Mrs. Bearse has been notified by the parent group that her article was the Bay State winner. It was written in the form of a letter to Felicity. A few excerpts from the essay are as follows:

"I want my leisure and your leisure to give us back what this fast-moving 1930 may take from us. I want our moments of leisure to do for me and you what the hours of leisure, as the world knows it, has never done. Current event classes, gymnasium and literature classes—all within the confines of four walls—must and do play vitally important parts in the leisure life of women.

"In every woman's mind today there must exist a gorgeous confusion of calories, Mussolini, salad, floor coverings, Oklahoma, spring hats and what-shall-I-have-for-supper. But somehow on this spring day that blackbird's 'ok-alee' swampward keeps creeping into this chaos and I long to be over the hills. That way lies peace and meditation and strength.

A SIMPLE LIFE

"You see how I am advocating a return to a simple, ungarnished variety of life. Pastoral existence, indeed. Because I know that I need to get out under the sky to be refreshed, I take it for granted that all of humanity does. It means that I shall walk again down by beloved piney woods, that I shall let my telephone ring some day, and tune my soul to a river winding westward. All the tomorrows in the world cannot take away from me the peace that will be mine.

"My leisure moments have given me the greatest of all gifts—a renewal of the spirit."

Women's City Club Will Carry Cheer to Sick Children

The Women's City Club of Boston annually remembers the hospitals of the city for the children whose Christmas would otherwise be most dreary. This year the same policy will be pursued, and Katherine E. Driscoll, chairman of the special committees, urges City Club members to send contributions to her at the clubhouse before Saturday, Dec. 20.

She further states that the committee is greatly aided in its work if each toy is wrapped attractively, marked whether for boy or for girl, and if possible with the age of the child to whom it would appeal.

In this way the youngsters receiving the gifts receive articles especially suited to them.

D. A. R. Session at Hotel Statler to Last Two Days

Tomorrow and Thursday, the Northern Divisional Region of the Daughters of the American Revolution will hold a two-day conference at the Hotel Statler with Massachusetts the hostess state.

Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart, president general of the D. A. R., will preside over all sessions, calling the conference officially to order tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. At that time, Mrs. Stephen P. Hurd, hostess state regent, will give the address of welcome followed by an acceptance address from Mrs. William A. Becker, organizing secretary general.

National vice-chairmen will discuss committee work of the order. Tomorrow night, Gaspar G. Bacon, president of the Massachusetts Senate and Rev. Frank S. Cotter will make the principal speeches. An informal reception will follow.

According to Mrs. S. Ernest Griffin, state chairman of publicity for the Massachusetts D. A. R., the meetings are conducted along the same lines as the Continental Congress at Washington.

Hats Are Taking on Romantic Trend

ANN ARDEN will answer questions concerning clothes, social customs or fashions generally. Address your questions to the Boston Evening American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser or to Station WLEX.

FROM TRIMMINGS to tricornes! or perhaps it ought to be the other way around. But anyway, that is the way hats are heading (not a pun!). With all the digging about there has been in the fashion archives of late—clothes develop a new flavor faster than we can buy them.

* * *

THE MOMENT we saw that Paris was busy putting feathers in her caps this fall, we had a hunch that before long there would be plumes. And when hats started tilting backwards, what could be smarter than to make them like the saucily peaked tricorne? Tricornes have an aura about them that suggests fascinating coquettes of French fiction and art. Perched to this side or that on the head, they challenge you to be a bit more daring, a trifle more flirtatious than you would ever think of being in, say, a more sedately brimmed affair.

* * *

FEATHERS GIVE a perky touch by the manner in which they are placed. The small cockade is decidedly youthifying. Plumes, and real ostrich ones, too, are now the rage of the moment for those tricornes that seem to fit so well into the mood of the formal afternoon frock. These soft, flattering remnants of a gracious era do charming things for you. Long plumes float from the tilted peak of the tricorne down over the shoulder. Some hug the face at one side or cleverly cascade from beneath the brim. They are the epitome of the romance we all seek from life—and more recently from clothes!

* * *

THE SMALLER hat pictured is of gray felt seamed to close fitting crown, topped with small flat bow of the felt. The cuff brim forms a tricorn, the two side points giving becoming width, and edged in gray krimmer fur.

* * *

* * *

WHETHER WE like it or not, and most of us do, a romantic era is descending upon us. What could be a more definite proof of this than the return to the graceful ostrich plume. From a feather in the cap for morning we go to a plume in the hat for formal afternoon. Curled bits of ostrich appear about the face-framing brim of one model, simulating curling locks.

QUICKEST WAY TO KNOCK A COLD

Millions Say of This Proved Way You Feel Like a New Person Almost Before You Know It

If you want quick relief from a cold, go back to first principles and use something you know does the business—don't start "trying" a lot of fancy ideas or remedies. Even a "little" cold is too dangerous to take chances on.

Get Hill's Cascara Quinine. A scientific formula made to do ONE THING WELL: to knock a cold in a jiffy, not to cure a hundred different things.

Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all. Soon those mean, aching pains in head and body begin to go; the cold breaks up; poisons leave your system. Almost before you know it, you feel like a new person.

If it doesn't do that, your money back. Get a box now. You'll be surprised at the speed with which it works. Costs only a few cents.

Christmas Reunion Arranged by Helping Hand Department

Bernadette, seven-year-old daughter of a disabled World War veteran, will leave the charitable home where she has been living for weeks in plenty of time to spend Christmas with her father and mother.

The story of Bernardette, published in the Boston Evening American after her father had communicated with the Helping Hand and Christmas Basket Fund Editor, brought a ready response from a Goodfellow who declined to reveal his identity.

Not only will Bernadette be with her parents on the great day but provisions have been made by her benefactor to keep the little girl and her father and invalid mother supplied with food, clothing and a home until the father finds work.

There are many Bernadettes in Greater Boston and throughout New England who have appealed to the Basket Fund Editor for food and clothing.

If you want to help them in any way—with food, clothing or donations to the Basket Fund do so without delay for most of them are in desperate need. Read the letters they send and open your hearts and purses to them. HELP THEM TODAY.

VETERAN WANTS WORK
(Refer to Case 72)

My husband is out of work for over three months now and it looks as if he will not get work for a while yet. He is a disabled soldier from the Italian Army and lost his pension by becoming an American citizen. He is a cook by trade but would do anything so as to keep alive our family. We have four children from one to 10 years.

I would appreciate any kind of help given me for my children's sake.

FURNITURE WANTED
(Refer to Case 73)

We are getting a litle city aid as my husband has been out of work for a long time and we have a baby eight months old which is sickly. I am asking if someone has a carriage or a stroller and a high chair and a few pieces of furniture such as a bed and dresser or a trunk. We have only two rooms and we need a few pieces of furniture for our home.

Thanking you, I hope you don't put my name and address in the paper.

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

WITH EIGHT generations of one family giving devout attention to a common subject you had high hopes for The Passion Play now at the Boston Opera House. You expected big things of the Fassnachts of Freiburg; you were not disappointed. For sheer grandeur in spectacle, as we know it in the theater, The Passion Play easily held its own with Morris Gest's "Miracle," which, up to last night, had been Boston's outstanding demonstration in pageantry indoors.

* * *

AS IT MUST ALWAYS BE, any narrative presenting the life of Christ in dramatic form becomes episodical. So, of necessity, The Passion Play passed before your eyes like an unfolding panorama. As the story itself and the characters who move in it are historically established, it remained only for the Fassnachts to build a massive, glittering frame for the picture and endow it with not only their own talents but with those of many others. Except for its manner of presentation there was very little of the theater about it. But it did possess in its shifting episodes fine elements of gripping, heart-throbbing drama.

Nicholas Young

* * *

NONE OF THE details of Christ's aching journey from Herod to the cross were omitted. None of the sidelights in this wonderful story that all Christians tell and retell were exaggerated, unless, perhaps, it was the final tortures of Judas. Not many people would give much thought to that; and possibly not much sympathy. But there was an impressive gleam to every step in that journey; there was no extravagance to it; just a faithful portrayal of what most of us believe took place on that fated day.

* * *

EVEN WITHOUT its brilliant background of color, its almost grand opera choirs and its massed ensembles, The Passion Play still would reveal itself as something of serious, impressive account. For the Fassnachts had brought from Freiburg a group of players skilled in all the finer arts of the theater. Adolf himself, who played the Christus and is master of the expedition from the homeland, is an actor of splendid reserve, of good voice and a commanding figure in any situation. And then there is his good frau, Elsa, who played Mary Magdalene and his daughter, Amalie, who reversed the order of things and appeared as Mary, the mother of Jesus; these are the family folk who took up a heavy burden and made it seem light.

* * *

AMALIE FASSNACHT, whose voice rang clear and true in two numbers, is reported as already under contract with the Metropolitan Opera Co. Other good actors were Paul Dietz, Otto Ludwig, Fritz Schoeller, Heinrich Hauck, Joseph Meier and Willi Ehrhardt, the latter playing Judas. While we had no great admiration for the character, it must be confessed that Mr. Ehrhardt made Judas an outstanding item in the evening's list of roles well done.

* * *

IT IS SELDOM that any theatrical spectacle, arranged mostly for the eye, has come to us with so many other interesting qualities; qualities that are not spectacular at all. In this regard Mr. Adolf Fassnacht and his daughter, Amalie, may be mentioned; also Mr. Dietz and Mr. Ehrhardt. The Freiburg Passion Play was rich in personalities. Therein you will find its many charms; its warm invitation to see something new and enjoy it.

Continuing Shows

SHUBERT—Queenie Smith in "The Street Singer." Briskly moving musical comedy. Last days.

LYRIC—"The Blue Ghost." First week at the Lyric, where its ghosts and goblins may find new nooks and crannies for hiding places.

GARY COOPER AND MARLENE DIETRICH

I SUPPOSE YOU think, you can restore my faith in men," says Marlene Dietrich, who looks like Greta Garbo, to Gary Cooper in this scene from "Morocco." This Paramount film comes to the Uptown and the Olympia next Friday.

ROOMS BEHIND BROWNSTONE FRONT IN PLAY FURNISHED

By HARRIS MORGAN

There seems to be something very real about those rooms on the first floor and on the second floor—about eight of them, judging from the view you get from the orchestra, as you look on at "Street Scene." It is worth while to investigate.

Anyone who has seen "Street Scene," now at the Majestic, will recall that all through the play the 50 or more characters pass along the sidewalk in front of the brownstone house which "has seen better days." There are peddlars and so forth in the street, and characters leaning out windows to gossip with neighboring tenants or with those who seek relief from the heat of a summer night by sitting on the doorsteps.

Barbara Willison

"You do not see so much detail of the interior furnishing of those rooms from the orchestra as you do from the balconies," explains Glenn Coulter—stage director, who plays the role of Harry Easter, the man who tries to "date up" Barbara Willison as Rose Maurrant, while his wife is away in the country. "But if you will take a look in these rooms you will see that they are all properly furnished. It not only helps the illusion as far as the audience is concerned, but it helps the actors keep in the spirit of the parts they play."

Sure enough, a peek back of the brownstone front revealed the room from which Kaplan leans on the window sill, as completely furnished with table and chairs, rug on the floor, and even an old-fashioned gas chandelier lighted.

You can see Kaplan step to the back part of the room, take from the table a glass of wine and a piece of cake which he brings to the window sill to sip and munch while he continues reading his paper. But one out of a hundred who see "Street Scene" could not tell you whether that room was furnished or not. It is the same with the other room, although not to so complete an extent.

DAINTY DORIS HOWARD HIT

A new dancing star, Dainty Doris Birmingham, scored a touchdown of popularity at the Old Howard yesterday. Miss Birmingham, with the "Radium Queens" Mutual burlesque, is a stately beauty with much personal charm coupled with artistic ability. The comedy merrymakers introduced Benny Moore, an old time favorite who kept things humming. He is ably assisted by Lew Lewis. The famous Perry Twins and Taris pleased. Gabby Fields with her comedy make-up was a scream. Dolly Davis and Syd Burke helped to make this offering one of speed.

The management provided a vaudeville and picture bill of merit. The Four Kadex in an aerial thriller, and the Black Gat Four, were headliners. The Jack Hughes Duo gave a musical feast. The pictures were "Three Passions" and "Children of Pleasure." There will be a midnight show Friday night at 11:30.

Orpheum Films Will Change on Friday

"Min and Bill," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's comedy drama co-starring Marie Dressler and Wallace Beery, will open its downtown run at Loew's Orpheum beginning Friday of this week.

The change in booking will necessitate the final screening of "A Lady's Morals" on Thursday night.

JUNIOR DURKIN SIGNED FOR MARK TWAIN FILM

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 2—I haven't heard one dissenting voice against the charm of "Tom Sawyer." Paramount has done so well by Mark Twain's beloved hero that even the most difficult audiences have not been disappointed. As for box office records, "Tom Sawyer" has broken them at all the Paramount theaters.

I am glad to hear that for we have had too few pictures that the youngsters can understand and enjoy. The beautiful part of "Tom Sawyer" is that grown-ups as well as the kiddies are getting a thrill out of all the familiar adventures of Tom and his friends.

Louella O. Parsons

Junior Durkin has already been signed for the next Mark Twain adventure which goes into production in February. Junior Durkin, delightful child actor, will be starred in "Huckleberry Finn." Junior played "Huck" in "Tom Sawyer" but of course with Jackie Coogan in the cast he was sort of a second fiddle. I am wondering if Mitzi Green will again be in the picture and Jackie Searles. Norman Taurog will direct.

* * *

JAMES HALL'S persistent admirer in the East hasn't written for at least a week. Maybe he is saving postage stamps. Any way, this is for him and for the other Hall admirers who do not bombard us with sarcastic letters. James Hall will have the male lead in "Mother's Millions" opposite May Robson. This, you will remember, is a Liberty production and is being made by M. H. Hoffman. "Mother's Millions" was Miss Robson's stage play and Mr. Hoffman is promising to do right by it and by her.

* * *

BACK INTO OUR lives once more comes Raymond Schrock, well-known scenario writer, executive and general handy man in the film business. We haven't heard of Ray in many a day. He has now been signed by Universal because of a story written around the steel industry, starring Lew Ayres. Young Ayres will have to be twins if he continues to be the leading light in as many pictures as Universal plans for him.

WHOOPEE GIRL AT GAYETY

La Villa Maye, original whoopee girl, set up a new high mark for entertainment yesterday at the Gayety. Her songs and dances and her individualistic way of putting them over made a hit. She appeared as a featured guest star and was an added attraction to Al Golden's company, "Laffin Thru."

"Laffin Thru" contained a barrel of talent. Betty DuVall, red-headed ingenue, was another star who captivated the audience. She had an unusual method of singing and dancing. Alice Ryan, the Delmar Sisters and Snookie Woods were other favorites.

The comedy was handled by Bert Carr and Happy Hyatt, who represented 280 pounds of fun.

"Broadway" and "Parisian Night Club" were the two big scenes. Specialty dancing was another feature. Holub's Jazz Hounds and the chorus were other attractions which clicked.

Here Soon

HELEN WESTLEY

MISS WESTLEY is featured in "Green Grow the Lilacs," the Theater Guild production that opens at the Tremont next Monday.

RUTH DRAPER WILBUR STAR

That lady with the magic dramatic touch, Ruth Draper, on the stage of the Wilbur, last night, gave new proof of her ability to hold an audience enthralled to her mood and manner. It was a vastly appreciative house, too, one that responded heartily to each number on the program. It has been two years since Miss Draper was last seen here; that her following is apparently greater than ever was shown in filled seats and the ovation accorded her.

How this actress, with few "props," etches her widely varying character impersonations, doing it with wellnigh perfect artistry, makes her almost unique among footlight entertainers. She is her own author: and she is the whole show, too. Each sketch is exquisitely done; there is no waste of words, the dialogue is diamond-cut, and Miss Draper with amazing facility swings from the Alpha to the Omega of characterization.

"A Dalmatian Peasant in the Hall of a New York Hospital," is worth its place among the new members on her list.

Miss Draper will be here through the week. She will change her program on Thursday.

Coming Events

"Green Grow the Lilacs," first of the season's Theater Guild plays, will come to the Tremont next Monday.

Katharine Cornell in "Dishonored Lady" will be the attraction at the Wilbur starting next Monday. The engagement is for two weeks.

GRACE MOORE WINS PRAISE AT ORPHEUM

An engrossing story, lavish staging and some of the finest music that picture-goers have ever been offered on the talking screen, are all to be found in the first film appearance of Grace Moore in "A Lady's Morals," now at Loew's Orpheum. Miss Moore has the role of Jenny Lind, the Swedish nightingale.

The days when Jenny Lind was the world's idol; her debut in New York, chaperoned by P. T. Barnum, and a delicate love romance between the singer and the composer, Paul Brandt, are woven into a magnificent example of a new form of screen drama with music.

On stage, the entertaining vaudeville bill matches the sterling screen fare. Mary Haynes, satirizing the foibles of human nature, is the headliner. An under water novelty presents Odiva and the Human Seals in a program of unusual feats. The act is the only one of its kind in vaudeville. Marguerite and Gill have a smartly presented offering of song, steps and styles. Tex McLeod, world's champion roper, holds the audience with his wise-cracks and rope-twirling, and Thelma De Onza, assisted by Sister Sally and Company, complete the bill with an original singing, dancing and comedy revue.

"Purity" Opens at the Plymouth

Florence Reed in "Purity," the third of the season's presentations by the Professional Players, occupied the stage at the Plymouth last evening. The play is the work of a popular French writer, Rene Wachthausen. As was to be expected, the role placed heavy emotional demands upon Miss Reed's talents, which she met in good fashion. Included in Miss Reed's support are Richard Bird, Malcolm Williams, Maude Odell, Marcella Swanson, Perl Ramoy, Loretta Shea and Frank Horton. "Purity" will be reviewed in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

NEW SCOLLAY SHOW GOES OVER BIG

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

DAVE KRAMER and his "Big Party," filling the stage bill at the Scollay, proved to be the peak effort in "Vinson Vaudeville." Kramer has the audience "eating out of his hand," as they say in show business. Let him but show his head and the audience laughs "its own head off." Already tested as a picker of sure-fire talent, Elliston Vinson has gotten another winner, so that the Scollay has a rich entertainment program to feed out this week.

Versatile Dave's offering has variety, pep and talent. There is generous amount of all three, also. Jeanie, hailed as the world's tiniest star, is a wee mite of womanhood of unusual gifts, and the applause apparently selected her as the special favorite, though nearly all the performers scored heavily.

For a rare treat there was the beauty of Marjorie Moore, cleverly playing her violin as she toe-danced all over the stage. For a bushel of laughs there were the Hartmans, dance comics. The McGushion Twins went over big with singing and dancing. Bobette was another twinkletoes, with the 11 Hot Kramolians breaking away from their jazz band to give military background to her terpsichorean work.

And there were even more acts to please. Among these were specialties by Bennie Fairbanks, the master of ceremonies; Ryan & Noblette in a comedy turn; Hall & Pillard, with more laughter to uncork; Eddie Court, dance director, who did an act "on his own"; Frances Hart, ballerina; the Scollayettes, and Miss Florence Ross, singer.

On screen is "Derelict," starring George Bancroft.

When Risko Meets Maloney Duel Can Not End in Foul ↕ Taylor Protector for Both Boxers Fortune at Stake

$100,000 for Winner; Obscurity for Loser

Fans, those of you who haven't done your Christmas Fund Boxing Show ticket buying already—no match of such magnitude ever was presented at such bargain prices—when you walk up to the Garden box office and plank down the root of all evil for next Friday night's big slugfest between Jim Maloney and Johnny Risko, you can rest assured that you will get a run for your money. The battle will be fought to a clean finish and victory will be awarded on a knockout or on points. There will be no decision on a foul. Fouls will be out. Just as was done for the Carnera-Maloney match the BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN will insist that both boxers wear the Taylor protector, which prevents a boxer from being incapacitated by a low punch.

George Underwood

The BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN not only will insist that both boxers be equipped with the Taylor cup but will ask each boxer to agree not to accept a victory or defeat on a foul. This will mean that the bout can not be terminated by anything except a clean knockout and will guarantee the spectators they will see a fair, square, standup contest which will be decided strictly on its merits.

From the foregoing don't get the impression that any suspicion has been aroused by either boxer. The precautionary measures are being taken simply to protect the public and assure every boxing patron he will get a run for his money. The Christmas Fund boxing show is the greatest show of the season and the BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN is not leaving anything to chance. It believes in locking the barn door before the horse is stolen.

Johnny Risko is an honest fighting man. He always gives his best. He never has failed to give the boxing fans their money's worth. Whenever the Cleveland baker answers the gong an opponent has to fight or jump over the ropes.

The only times Risko failed to satisfy was when Johnny was guilty of a low punch. In his bout against George Cook here and in his last encounter with Dick Daniels, Johnny was adjudged the loser on a foul. After being knocked off his feet twice by Daniels Risko came from behind and apparently was turning the tide, when in his mad rush to overcome lost ground, struck low, incapacitated his opponent and was adjudged loser on a foul.

Maloney also has figured in foul decisions here. He lost an encounter to Jack Sharkey on a foul. When Shamus officially knocked out Armand Emanuel some of the spectators thought the Boston slugger had struck low.

Remember when Maloney and Risko start swinging man-sized polthogues in the big Christmas Fund Boxing Show in the Boston Garden next Friday night each will be wearing the Taylor Cup and neither can be incapacitated by a low blow. There will be no sudden ending by a foul like there was to the Risko-Daniels encounter. The victor will either win on a decision at the end of the tenth round or will win by a clean knockout inside that distance.

EVERY INCENTIVE

Maloney has been offered big money to box Young Stribling either in Miami or in Havana. If Risko whips Carnera's conqueror Johnny naturally will step into the Stribling match.

Regarding the Sharkey match if anyone thinks we are talking through our hat we are willing to wager that before two weeks of the New Year are past, perhaps before, a match in which Sharkey will meet whoever wins next Friday night's big encounter, officially will be announced, or else Friday's winner will be found to be matched with either Carnera or Stribling. This is an honest statement of fact based on information that will be released officially at the proper time.

An inkling of it is given in this column at this time to show the tremendous incentives Risko and Maloney have to win and to confute any rumors—always before any important ring encounter rumor mongers start "in the bag" reports—that may creep up, spreading the impression the big bout is not to be "on the level."

Before the Carnera-Maloney match, because of the unsavory record made by Carnera, this writer entertained an honest suspicion that Maloney might be in there only to "take a dive." It was because of those suspicions that this writer forced both Maloney and Carnera to agree to wear the Taylor protective device, and to agree not to accept a victory or defeat on a foul.

Carnera and Maloney went into the Garden ring and put up the greatest heavyweight fight ever seen in Boston, and about the most sensational heavyweight encounter since Jack Dempsey tamed the Wild Bull of the Pampas in that heart thrilling, soul stirring, never to be forgotten encounter in the Yankee Stadium, New York.

HEART THRILLER

This writer honestly and sincerely believes that thrilling as was the Carnera-Maloney encounter next Friday night's clash between the conqueror of Carnera and the man who knocked Maloney out in their last meeting will be even more sensational.

Like the Carnera-Maloney encounter the Maloney-Risko duel cannot be decided on a foul. It must be decided strictly on its merits.

Maloney and Risko have every incentive to win.

Friday night's encounter will be staged at popular prices, fifty cents, one, two and three dollars, the lowest prices ever charged for a bout of such magnitude. It only was possible to bring the two together at popular prices because of the Christmas Fund and the slump boxing has been in.

Maloney has agreed to accept twenty-five per cent of the gross receipts. Risko signed for twenty per cent of the receipts.

Matches in which five times, aye ten times, the sum Maloney and Risko will receive next Friday night await the winner.

Is it reasonable to give ear to any rumor that either man will be in there next Friday night not giving everything that is in him to win?

"Risko is all washed up," hints Shorty the Office Boy.

How many times in the last three years has Risko been declared "all washed up?"

How many times did the India Rubber Man from Cleveland come back to confute the rumor mongers?

If Jim Maloney cannot uncork an even more sensational fight than he did against Primo Carnera then Our Shamus is in grave danger of being the victim of another Risko upset next Friday night.

Remember Risko knocked Maloney cold in their last meeting.

Save the late Stanley Ketchel, who, knocked out by Billy Papke came back and knocked out the Kewanee Thunderbolt in a return battle, how many knockout victims do you recall who came back and turned the tables on their conquerors?

Such men are scarcer than hen's teeth.

Golden Glove Bouts Open on Saturday

The Golden Glove tournament will open at Mechanics Building on Saturday night. There will be bouts at 112, 118, 126, 135, 147 and 160 pounds and in the heavyweight division. It is expected that there will be at least 40 bouts.

Roper to Be Guest of Honor at Annual Yale Party

New York, Dec. 2—Bill Roper, who ended his career as coach of football at Princeton this season, will be a guest of honor at Yale's annual "win, lose or draw" party given by Nicholas Roberts Saturday night in Montclair, N. J.

This is the first time since these celebrations were begun 10 years ago that an invitation has been sent to any except Yale men. Roper's team this year gave Yale a great battle, before losing, 10-7.

Coach Mal Stevens of Yale, his entire 1930 squad, and 10 former Eli football captains as well as alumni from all parts of the country will be present.

By BILL GRIMES

Two sensational defense men, Eddie Shore and King Clancy, will renew their rivalry, which has extended over a period of years, when the Bruins and Toronto Maple Leafs clash tonight in the Boston Garden.

Shore and Clancy are the king pins of N. H. L. hockey. Their rugged type of hockey has made them the biggest drawing cards in the game. Until this season, King Clancy was the main spring of the Ottawa Senators, but he was purchased during the off season by Manager Connie Smythe of the Maple Leafs for the alleged sum of $35,000.

Bill Grimes

Clancy is a hard working player, and the success of the Leafs this season can be attributed to the former Senator. Not only has Clancy plugged up a weak spot on the Toronto defense but he has put some much-needed, and for years lacking, fighting and spark in the Smythe outfit.

Eddie Shore and King Clancy have opposed each other approximately a score of times since the former came up to the big league and they have never failed to be the outstanding feature. Due to their personal rivalry, Shore and Clancy bear down extremely hard when they meet. They are both lightning fast, great stick handlers, clever puck carriers and pack deadly shots. Defensively, they are the heavy body-checking type and when they hit, the hittee stays hit.

Bruins Seem Headed for Trouble Tonight

As the Bruins have not been clicking up to standard, they are in for some trouble this evening. The Rossmen are coming around slowly, but up to the present they have been unable to control their passes, a department of hockey of which they were outstanding last season.

The Maple Leafs went along for four games without being scored on, but their streak of shutouts and victories were terminated by the Philadelphia Quakers, the weakest club in the National Hockey League.

With the exception of Capt. Lionel Hitchman, the Bruins are in fine physical condition, despite the stretch of hard contests during the past two weeks. Hitchman is bothered by his teeth, which developed from the fractured jaw he received last season.

Manager Ross to Start Thunderbolt Line

Manager Art Ross will open with Perk Galbraith, Marty Barry and Harry Oliver. Galbraith and Oliver have been very effective this year, and Marty Barry who is always a slow starter, is beginning to find himself and he will soon be the Marty Barry of last spring's play-offs.

Dutch Gainer, Cooney Weiland and Dit Clapper will be dispatched into action after the Thunderbolt line has done its bit and then the kid trio, Smokey Harris, Art Chapman and Bill Hutton will try their hands.

Springer Elected Malden Captain

Frank H. Springer of 8 Cliffside Terrace, Malden, was today elected captain of the Malden High school football eleven for 1931 being the unanimous choice of 21 lettermen. Heplayed guard.

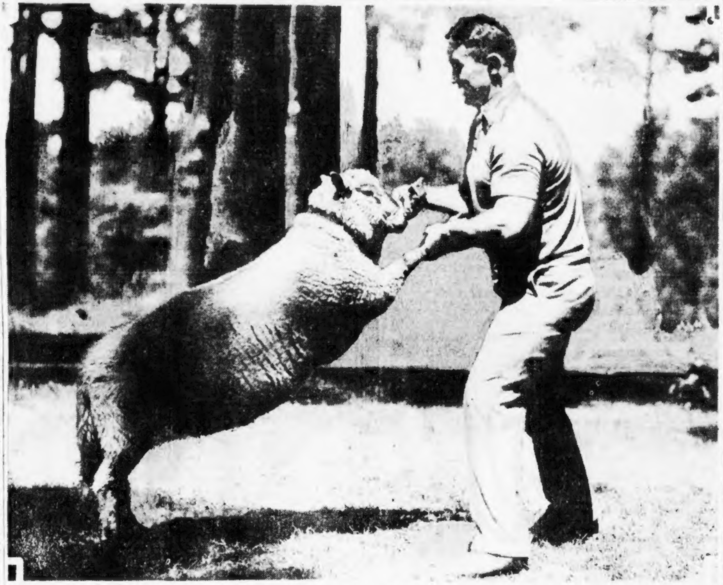
CHARGING RAM REMINDS SHAMUS OF RISKO



DOES THIS SOLVE the mystery of the disappearance of the Fordham Ram? If this isn't the Maroon's Rameses IV, then it is his first cousin. Fooling with a "line bucker" of this species is akin to tickling the business end of an Alabama mule, but it's all a part of the training Jim Maloney is doing for Johnny Risko. Our Shamus seizes the feet of the charging critter, lifts him up and rolls him over a la Gus Sonnenberg. That doesn't mean the Maloney-Risko shindy is going to be a wrestling match. It is going to be a slugfest which will make a Donnybrook seem as quiet and decorous as a Quaker meeting—and all for the Christmas Fund of the BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN.

FOSTER IS BACK WITH TIGERS

Harry ("Yip") Foster, star defense man of the Boston Tigers, who sustained a shoulder injury 10 days ago which kept him out of the last three games, is back again with the team.

Yip reported that his shoulder was feeling fine, but Manager Powers, in order to take no chances, took Yip's stick away from him and told him to try nothing more than skating. The chances are that he will not play against Providence Reds on Wednesday, though his presence in the Tiger line-up is badly needed. But he should be ready for the Springfield game at the Garden on Saturday night.

Fitchburg Boy to Lead Middlebury

Middlebury, Vt., Dec. 2—Charles Thrasher of Fitchburg, Mass., was elected captain of the Middlebury College football team for the 1931 season at a meeting of the lettermen. Thrasher, regular end for the past two seasons, has twice been chosen for the all-State eleven.

The men receiving letters include six from Greater Boston: Walter J. "Duke" Nelson, '32, former football, hockey and baseball player at Dorchester high and Tilton academy; Harold R. "Pat" Perry, '31, captain of the 1930 football team, former Lynn Classical boy; George Foote, from English high and Goddard Seminary; George Yoemans, '33 of Canton; Donald McLean of Milton high, and Robert Bakeman, '32, from Peabody high.

Fordham Awards 21 Football Letters

New York, Dec. 2—Twelve of the 21 members of Fordham's powerful football squad awarded letters today, have played their last game for the Rams. Eight juniors were in the list and only one sophomore. The squad will meet today to elect a successor to Tony Siano, crack center, as captain for 1931. Jim Murphy, big halfback; Jack Fisher, quarterback, and John Conroy, end, are the only regulars eligible for the captaincy.

Three Teams Tie in N. Y. Bike Race

New York, Dec. 2 (INS)—At 12:30 today the three teams of Belloni-Richili, De Nef-Charlier, and Spencer-Debaets still were tied for the lead in the intrnational bike race at Madison Square Garden.

The riders had pedalled 39 hours and 761 miles.

Harvard Hockey Coach Is Pleased With New Rules

Thanks to the 1930 intercollegiate hockey rules, college hockey will be faster than ever this winter, according to Joe Stubbs, Harvard's hockey coach.

Now that the collegians may play under rules hitherto restricted to professional matches, the standard brand of college hockey becomes a thing of the past. Speed will be at a premium, and the game will be more generally wide open than ever before.

"The greatest change in the rules governing college hockey this winter is the rule which permits forward passing over two-thirds of the playing surface," Stubbs said. "Last year, a team could forward only inside the blue line marking its defense zone. Now passing is permitted in the center zone as well."

Goalies Will Have to Be Smarter Than Ever

The anti-defense rule, inaugurated a year ago is another step in the right direction to speed up college hockey, Stubbs thinks.

Goalies will have to be smarter than ever to comply with the new rules. The time worn trick of the netkeepers, of dropping on both knees to prevent a possible score, has been eliminated, and now they may go down on one knee only to clear a shot at the net.

Harvard is anxious to play hockey under the new rules. Most of the Crimson veterans, who got their taste of the new brand of hockey against the Bruins a year ago, are enthusiastic supporters of the new game.

Through an arrangement whereby Harvard's sextet will have many opportunities to scrimmage against Art Ross' Bruins team, Stubbs hopes to accustom his Cantab players to the new rules very quickly.

In the opinion of the Harvard coach, the practice of letting his college sextet work out against the professionals is a decided help to the Harvard team.

After watching some 80 Harvard ice candidates go through their first workout of the season at the Garden, Stubbs declared that he had better than average material from which to select the Harvard 1930 six.

Gus Sonnenberg on Road to Recovery

Providence, R. I., Dec. 2 (INS)—Gus Sonnenberg, world's heavyweight wrestling champion, today was reported much improved at a Providence hospital, where he has been battling a bad cold, which at one time, threatened to develop into pneumonia.

Gus has been forced to cancel several important engagements for matches which would have taken him as far west as Des Moines.

Babe Ruth Off on Hunting Trip

Goldsboro, N. C., Dec. 2 (AP)—The Sultan of Swat is south again to seek some hunting.

George Herman "Babe" Ruth passed through Goldsboro today with Frank Stevens, New York concession man, enroute to Camp Bryan, for two weeks with the gun.

Fights Last Night

By International News Service.

At New Orleans—Arthur Dekuh, New York heavyweight, knocked out Big Boy Peterson, New Orleans (7).

At Pittsburgh—Al Friedman, Boston heavyweight, and Emmett Rocco, Ellwood City, Pa., drew (10).

Few Candidates for 'H' Court Team

Contrary to the general run of Harvard winter sport teams, the Cantab basketball squad is suffering from a dearth of varsity material.

Coach Ed Wachter faces a real task in picking the Harvard quintet for their opening game with M. I. T. Dec. 12.

Of the last year's team only Capt. Tommy Farrell and Justin Rex are returning veterans. Max Pierce, Paul Mahady and Tommie Nido, all members of the varsity a year ago, are lost through graduation.

Game Was in the Bag, but Bag Is Mysteriously Stolen

New York, Dec. 2—A suitcase containing diagrams of the plays which Washington State intended to use in its game against Alabama, at the Pasadena Tournament of Roses January 1, was stolen from William Tonkin, the team's quarterback, at a hotel Saturday night.

The diagrams are orginals and there are no copies. The suitcase with its precious freight was filched during a party the players held to celebrate their victory over Villanova at Philadelphia Saturday.

The police picked up Jacob Kirby, Brooklyn youth, who admitted he'd crashed the party but who said he didn't have the diagrams. The suitcase, he averred, was stolen by another intruder whose name he didn't know. Kirby's sentence was suspended.

ZERAMBY WINS BY GREAT RALLY

A rally in the final round carried Jake Zeramby of Lynn to a hard earned decision over Johnny Hanlon, also of Lynn, before a capacity house at the North St. Rink, Salem. There was little to choose between the rival lightweights until Zeramby asserted his superiority in the last round.

Patsy Santo, Revere, stopped George Salvadore, Edgartown, in the fourth round of the semifinal, when a towel halted festivities, while Frank Millerich of Somerville knocked out Pete Arakelian, Newburyport, in the second round.

Two Yale Players Accept Kerr's Bid

Hamilton, N. Y., Dec. 2—Fred Linehan, guard, and Francis Vincent, captain and tackle of the Yale eleven, accepted invitations to play with Andy Kerr's All-East football team in the annual contest with the West at San Francisco New Year's day. The game is for the benefit of the Shriners' Hospital.

Vincent and Linehan are the first of the prominent eastern players to join Kerr's squad. Kerr added, however, that he expects to have the strongest delegation of representative eastern players that he has ever assembled for this contest. Dick Hanley, Northwestern coach, will select 11 men from middle western elevens to join with the 11 Kerr names.

Grid Player Dies From Broken Neck

White Plains, N. Y., Dec. 2—A broken neck received in a semi-professional football game, Sunday, was fatal to Thomas D'Orazio, 19, of Brooklyn. He died in White Plains Hospital after surgeons had performed an operation in an effort to save him.

D'Orazio, playing in the backfield for the Scarsdale team, was carried off the field paralyzed after being tackled hard. He was a student at St. John's College in Brooklyn.

MITTS MUST BE WEIGHED, HE INSISTS

By JACK CONWAY

Johnny Risko, through Manager Danny Dunn, today wired the Boston Evening American, demanding that special precautions be taken to see that the gloves he wears in his 10-round bout with Jim Maloney at the Boston Garden on Friday night do not weigh more than six ounces.

Jack Conway

"I had on six ounce gloves when I knocked out Maloney in Cleveland," wired Risko. "The Massachusetts law also calls for six ounce gloves. I know Maloney would feel much more secure if he knew my fists were covered with a couple of huge pillows.

"I shall insist that the gloves I wear be weighed by officials of the Boxing Commission. I don't intend to permit anything to be slipped over on me as I want to knock Maloney cold."

Matchmaker Alex MacLean of the Boston Garden and the Christmas Fund committee of the Boston Evening American have assured Risko that he will get six ounce gloves, and that he will enter the ring with Shamus on even terms.

MacLean says he will have the gloves weighed on the afternoon of the bout in the presence of representatives of the boxing commission and the Christmas Fund.

Risko apparently wants to guard against being handed eight-ounce gloves. It is a common practice to deaden the punch of a heavyweight by slipping him eight-ounce gloves instead of six-ounce ones.

Look for Knockout in Garden Bout

Here is a tip for Maloney. Don't underrate Risko. Johnny is in the best condition of his career for Friday night's bout. He has been roughing it on the shores of Lake Erie. He is ready to shoot.

Risko has already knocked Maloney out once and feels he can do it again. The mental attitude of a fighter is always important. I have found that once a boxer knocks out a rival he usually has the other fellow's number. He fights better himself, while his opponent never entirely gets over the fact he was knocked out by the man he is meeting again.

Therefore, Risko must receive serious consideration when he says he will knock Maloney out.

Shamus makes a similar statement. He is also entitled to consideration in view of the sensational showing he made against Primo Carnera.

It is a new Maloney who is thundering along the fistic trail. He believes he has the ability to defeat any of the big fellows. He certainly showed plenty of class as he conquered the gigantic Carnero.

Maloney-Risko Victor May Battle Carnera

The winner of the Maloney-Risko bout will probably receive a shot at Primo Carnera at an outdoor show next summer. Maloney is perfectly willing to give Carnera a return match, while Risko has been chasing the Italian giant for a year.

The complimentary list at the Garden has been suspended for the Maloney-Risko bout. This action was taken upon the request of persons who usually receive courtesies at the North Station sport palace. Everybody is anxious to help the Christmas Fund of the Boston Evening American which will receive 50 per cent of the profits of the Maloney-Risko show.

The Garden reports that hundreds of society folks have secured reservations for the heavyweight battle. The desire to see a great ring contest and at the same time help the Christmas Fund has made a wide appeal.

The Christmas Fund committee insisted on a price scale of from 50 cents to $3 so that everybody could afford to take in this big show. The Garden, with its immense seating capacity, will be able to care for all.

Lynn English Boys Win Two Places on All School Team

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

MELROSE BOY SELECTED AS FIELD GENERAL OF 'ALL' FOOTBALL TEAM OF 1930

By BILL CONNELL

Today is presented the Boston Evening American All-Scholastic football team for the season of 1930. Eleven great school gridmen, representing 10 schools, are placed on a mythical team which would sweep before it any kind of schoolboy opposition.

FIRST TEAM

Garland Winn, Somerville, right guard.

James Moran, Boston College high, right tackle

Watslo Mitkus, Brockton, right end.

Norman Rand, Salem, right halfback.

SECOND TEAM

Durham, Hyde Park, left guard.

Nayor, Brookline, center.

MacArthur, Lynn English, right guard.

Danosky, Waltham, right tackle.

H. Adzigian, Stoneham, right half back.

Fay, Natick, right tackle.

Jannell, Lynn English, right half back.

Gill, Haverhill, fullback.

Bill Connell

There have been no restrictions placed on the selection of this first team or of the second and third teams and the honor roll. Public and private schools players alike were considered.

Brockton, Haverhill and such teams were studied. These elevens, and some others which are not in Greater Boston, play such representative local clubs as Malden, Medford, Waltham, Salem, Lynn English and other fine school groups of the Metropolitan area.

Therefore, the only fair method, if a comprehensive and not merely a restricted team is to be picked from the high schools, is to give due consideration to the football ability of boys from these "outside" schools.

Because this team was selected without prejudice regarding district, it was possible to pick a lad from Brockton high for one of the end positions on the All team, Watslo Mitkus. Mitkus, by actual test the strongest boy in Brockton high school, is 170 pounds of fighting bone and muscle, a great schoolboy end, on defense as well as attack. An outstanding member of one of the best teams in the state, Mitkus merited the All Scholastic honor.

Hussey Is Great Schoolboy End

A fit mate for Mitkus is Herman Hussey, Lynn English wingman. Over six feet tall and sturdily built, Hussey is a fine type of end. In addition to being able to carry all the regular duties of an end, he is a great punter, matching kicks with any of the star school booters.

What a pair of tackles Tom Kelley of Brookline and Jim M an of Boston College high would make. Both are big, strong, fast, have courage and intelligence.

Ted Etchings of Malden and Garland Winn of Somerville would gladden the heart of any coach who had this pair as his guards. Neither is a giant. Each is the type of guard demanded by modern football, sturdy, yet fast and aggressive, packing a hard charge and having the speed required when a guard is called on to run in the interference.

Chris Sarno of Medford is the pick of the schoolboy centers. Very aggressive and fast, he combined passing ability with defensive talent. As a roving center he did much to make effective the iron wall defense of Medford high.

Rex Kidd of Melrose is one of the great school field generals of recent years. He, first of all, is a very smart pilot, with an unusual knowledge of the rules and football strategy. He can pass, receive passes, and is a marvel running back kicks. He can kick when occasion demands. He would make a great halfback because of his ball carrying ability alone.

Tony Sarausky of Rindge Tech played quarterback all fall, for his team lacked a good signal caller, but he really is out of position at quarter. As a halfback his kicking, passing, running, blocking and tackling ability, plus the fact that he weighs more than 185 pounds, make him one of the best backs of the year, a boy without a superior as a school back.

Rand of Salem Flashy School Back

Norman Rand of Salem would add the flash of ball carrying brilliance needed by any great eleven. As a shifty running back he is in a class by himself. In addition he can pass, receive passes and place his punts with marvellous accuracy. He is an honor student at Salem and he is just as smart on the football field.

Tony Geniawicz, 195-pound Lynn English fullback, is a great line plunger and pass receiver. His presence on the backfield lends the perfect touch to a wonderful quartet. Tireless and injury proof, he is one of best fullbacks in years. His tackling form has been criticised, because Tony grabs 'em high. Yet his practical worth as a fullback cannot be questioned. He's a great gridster.

That completes the lineup. Such a team would have weight, speed, courage, skill and football brains in every position.

Some fine school football players are placed below the first team rating. The fact that eleven other boys had a little edge on these others does not detract a bit from the ability of second and third teams and honor roll names and the other fine players whose names may not be added because of lack of space.

Coaches Assisted in Picking Team

At this time this writer wants to thank such coaches as Harold Poole of Melrose, Ed Goodreau of Malden, Hubba Collins of Medford, Leander MacDonald of Cambridge Latin, Tom Murphy of Rindge Tech, Art McManus of B. C. high, Charley Dickerman of Somerville, Tom Fitzgerald of Brookline, Tom Whelan of Lynn English, Bill Joyce of Lynn Classical, Denny Gildea of Everett and all the other who made valued suggestions regarding the makeup of this All-Scholastic team.

With the help of these men the Boston Evening American was enabled to pick the best possible All-Scholastic team of the year.

The honor roll, which is necessarily not complete, because of the wealth of football material among the schoolboys, follows:

Double Penalty for Cutting Wiped From Hockey Rules

Detroit, Dec. 2—The double major penalty for cutting an opponent with a stick was wiped from the books at the regular meeting of the governors of the National Hockey League here.

The rule, which had been in force only since the opening of the 1930-31 season, was legislated out of existence effective with tonight's games.

In its place will be a rule distinguishing between intentional and unintentional slashes. Unintentionally cutting an opponent will draw for the offender five minutes in the penalty box, as in former years, while deliberately slashing a player about the head will bring the offender a 20-minute match penalty.

The rule abolished called for a 10-minute penalty for all cuts, regardless of whether they were intentional or unintentional. Strict enforcement had met with disfavor in most league cities.

Representatives of Detroit, Boston and Chicago clubs voted for its retention, and New York Rangers, New York Americans, Toronto, Philadelphia and Montreal voted for its abolition.

EVEN MONEY ON IRISH VS. U. S. C.

Los Angeles, Dec. 2 (US)—Even money and not much of that in sight.

That was the situation along the Los Angeles betting row today as Notre Dame's undefeated football team moved toward this city and Saturday's great game with Southern California.

Experts who have had an ear to the ground along Spring st., where money talks, said that until the Army-Notre Dame game the odds had favored Notre Dame at 10 to 8, 10 to 7 and 10 to 6, with 10 to 8 being the common language spoken by king cash.

A combination of southern California's 32-to-0 victory over Washington on Thanksgiving Day and Notre Dame's inability to do better than 7 to 6 over Army knocked those odds into the slush of Soldiers Field, where Army made its vain but glorious stand.

There was very little wagering today, and what little there was was at even money excepting in a few instances where small odds were given on southern California.

Whereas the early betting on this game exceeded all others of recent years, with wads of Notre Dame money in sight at 10 to 8, the Army game created a mild panic on the curb and those that had made bets already were an exceedingly worried lot, no matter on which team they had placed their money. This feeling of uncertainty as to the outcome of the game was responsible for the almost complete surcease of betting.

Thus the two elevens will take the field at the Coliseum Saturday on even terms. The great majority who were picking Notre Dame without hesitation have suddenly awakened to the fact that the fighting Irish are human, after all, that it may be possible for a group of men in another institution to meet them on even terms.

Red Sox Seek New Players

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

COLLINS AND QUINN AT MONTREAL

By JOE CASHMAN

President Bob Quinn of the Red Sox and his new board of strategy, composed of Manager John "Shauno" Collins and Coach Rudy Hulswitt, are attending the minor league meeting in Montreal today in the hope of picking up a few players who will strengthen the Fenway outfit next season.

There are several minor league stars that the new Sox pilot and his "right eye" would like to have and Quinn will go the limit in his effort to get them.

Joe Cashman

He doesn't hope to get them all and he isn't certain of getting even one, but he isn't going to return home empty-handed if he can possibly help it.

The Sox prexy and his new manager and coach will be back in Boston on Thursday and will sit down immediately to complete plans for the 1931 campaign.

Already it has been decided that the team will return to Pensacola, Fla., for spring training. Quinn was satisfied with the way his hired men rounded into form there last spring and when Collins declared the spot was O. K. with him, the native magnate decided to return.

Red Sox to Try Out 50 Players in South

According to present indications, the Sox will try out close to 50 players in the Southland.

Collins will decide when the work will start. He has already made up his mind to take his battery men and infielders without any big league experience to camp about ten days before the rest of the squad.

It is a common practice among big league pilots to start their battery men to work before the rest of the gang, but Collins is the first, to our knowledge, who favors starting the rookie fielders early.

Shauno has given no thought as yet to how he will divide the work of running the club with Hulswitt, his personally-appointed lieutenant, but the latter having been a great shortstop, will probably be given charge of the infielders with the manager taking care of the battery men and the outfielders.

Collins may or may not be a success as a manager but there is no doubt that his selection is a most popular one. Quinn is being congratulated on all sides today for his choice.

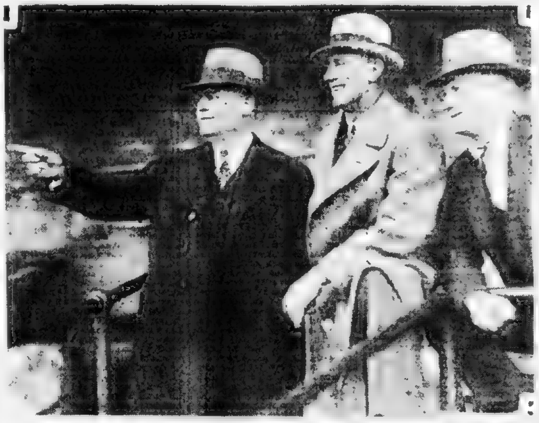
Choice of Collins Popular With Fans

The fans feared that some outsider would get the job and they didn't want to see that. So they shouted with glee when the popular native son was announced as the next pilot.

Collins' selection was and wasn't a surprise. His name had often been mentioned in connection with the job, which led the public to believe that he had a chance, but until he walked into Fenway Park yesterday afternoon and was introduced to the scribes as the new manager, not even the members of Quinn's own family knew the identity of the next boss of the team.

In fact, Quinn swears that he didn't know himself until Thanksgiving Day. Collins had asked to be considered and the "prexy" said he would consider him. That was at the close of the season, and neither talked to the other about it until the matter was settled on Turkey Day.

NEW RULERS LOOK THINGS OVER



BOB QUINN "SHAUNO" COLLINS RUDY HULSWITT

"THERE'S WHERE we'll win the American League Pennant," smiles Owner Bob Quinn, optimistically, as he scans the diamond at Fenway Park with his new manager, John Collins, and new coach, Rudy Hulswitt. Collins' appointment met with great approvement by local fandom. He is a native son, having been born in Charlestown. "Shauno" is expected to meet with success in handling the Red Sox reins. But it's a very tough job.

MORENZ LEADS IN SCORING

Montreal, Dec 2 (AP)—Although the world's champion Montreal Canadiens have not been able to get to the top of the standing in this year's National Hockey League campaign, their star center, Howie Morenz, is ahead of all rivals in the first official scoring list, issued today.

Morenz has scored seven goals and assisted in one for an eight-point total. Second place goes to Aubrey "Dit" Clapper of Boston, leader of the American division snipers, with five goals and two assists for seven points. Charlie Conacher, youthful Toronto wingman, is third with six points.

Two tough-and-ready defense men, Harvey Rockburn of Detroit and Alex Smith of Ottawa, each have had 25 minutes of penalties to lead the list in that respect. Each has had one major penalty.

BANTAM GOLF

JOE CASHMAN

The Boston Garden course gets its heaviest play, naturally, before and after hockey games, but the spot is thickly populated all the time. No less than 25,000 men, women and children have visited the place since it was opened, a week ago today. If that isn't a record it will do until a better one shows up.

The popularity of the Garden layout is due as much to such features as the radio rifle range, the archery range and golf pool and bowling as it is to the miniature course.

The management apparently realizes this, for it has been announced that six new specialties will be installed this week.

Another group of leading stage stars will be present at the weekly Theatrical Night at the Hotel Bradford course tomorrow evening.

The DeHaven Attractions, Inc., constructors of bantam courses are putting out a patented alphabetical course consisting of fairways in the shape of letters of the alphabet.

This new course will afford any individual, company or organization to use a golf layout as an advertisement.

"How to Play Miniature Golf," a publication recently started out in California, must be good. The entire first edition was sold on the Coast almost as soon as it was off the presses and another edition is being printed now to supply the Eastern demand.

This column is open to all course managements and fans for anything of real interest pertaining to bantam golf. Write on one side of the paper and write clearly and legibly.

THE LAST MILE

By Lewis Allen Browne

CHAPTER 10

[illegible] staged. He [illegible] before [illegible] greeting [illegible]

"Cheerio, God, here we are! Here are all these people eager to know that you are just a regular God, waiting to give them a spiritual hand-shake, a holy pat on the back and make fine upstanding and everlasting Christians of them."

That was a sample of his prayer and of [illegible] the method that had won for him the name "Cheerio" Bromley.

Cicily Walters was more interested in her only brother and the girl he was so crazy about.

When she and Sid finally left, she said, "I've been watching that girl of Dick's—she is certainly a modest, sweet little girl, unsophisticated and genuine. I don't blame him at all for falling for her."

They didn't meet Dick and Ethel because Sid had [illegible] Cicily to her home [illegible] to his office to hammer out his story for the morning paper.

Being one of the feature writers on the paper [illegible] for Sid. After the first big spiral on the "Cheerio" Bromley revival other meetings were left to other reporters.

Sid [illegible] dropped everything at this time and began work on the "Model Murder Case," which was soon [illegible].

Talk With Merton

The following week he decided among other things to have a talk with the murdered Kirk Thurber's closest chum, Merton Nissinger. He expected to learn a great many things from him of a sensational nature.

Nissinger, he learned, was out at his lake cottage. It was about 10 o'clock when he got around to get out there. Lights in the cottage assured him and he started to prowl around before calling to find out how the land lay inside.

The front shades were away down. So were the rear shades, but on the south side the shade [illegible] one window was up, and by [illegible] a box he found there and [illegible] beneath the window he got an excellent view of the [illegible] living room.

Sid Cavanaugh [illegible] and what he saw made his eyes open wider and his forehead become corrugated with wrinkles of surprise.

There on a divan with bottles and [illegible] shaker and poured drinks [illegible] was this supposedly pure and angelic Ethel whom Dick Walters [illegible] so madly.

There were many reasons why it shocked sophisticated Sid Cavanaugh to see Ethel Simmons and Mert Nissinger alone in Nissinger's lake cottage.

He was no reformer or anything of the sort, but in this case it became a personal matter with him.

Dick Walters believed Ethel Simmons to be almost a little saint. He adored her because he believed in her maidenly purity and innocence. Sid knew all about Dick's great love for the girl and his absolute conviction that she was all he believed her to be.

Not only was Sid Cavanaugh a great pal of Dick Walters, but he was in love with Dick's sister.

A wise man [illegible] everything except truth about the faithlessness of the friend's wife or the unworthiness of the friend's [illegible]. Ninety nine times out of a hundred he wasn't believed. It [illegible] the friendship. Knowing Dick Walters' love for Ethel Simmons and his [illegible] belief in the girl, Sid [illegible] that he would not tell Dick what he had seen.

Decided to Wait

First he would endeavor to talk Dick out of his infatuation for the girl. He would point out that he, Dick, wasn't making enough money in these days to afford matrimony and then he would urge a long engagement if it proved, as he suspected, that Dick and Ethel were already engaged.

He might, he figured, tell Dick's sister Cicily about the girl. But he wasn't sure that this would be best policy. Much as he loved Cicily and as much as he believed she loved him, he wasn't sure that he could trust her to secrecy in a case like this.

She would be likely to go to her brother about it and Dick would believe that she was running true to the proverbial form that sisters never quite approving of their brother's choice. The result would be still more trouble all around, Sid felt certain.

And so he decided to await his time and meanwhile to do everything possible to open Dick's eyes as to the truth about Ethel.

However, he had his work to do—interviewing Mert Nissinger about the "Model Murder Case," as it was now widely known. Nissinger and the murdered Kirk Thurber had been great pals. Sid was after every available fact and [illegible] to use in his newspaper articles [illegible] the trial of Viola Forsythe for the murder of Thurber was close at hand.

Sid got down from the box outside the cottage window, put the box back under some shrubbery, sneaked around front and came up the front steps briskly, and with plenty of noise.

He rapped with the old fashioned knocker on the cottage door.

There was quite a delay. On any other occasion it would have amused Sid, but he was grimly [illegible] for he knew Nissinger was [illegible] Ethel.

When Nissinger [illegible]

"Why the devil get a chap out of bed, Sid?" he asked.

"My job, Mert—open up, you've got to talk about poor Thurber and help me get something new in this case."

"I hope you do—God, I could tell enough, only I'm going to be married and I can't very well tell all I know in court—come in."

[illegible] Nissinger had been [illegible]

"I'd like to see the woman get the chair," Nissinger said as he joined Sid with a drink.

Ethel Hidden

[illegible] Ethel was [illegible] the sleeping room of [illegible]

"She should," Sid agreed, "but she will doll up to the limit, give the love-starved jurymen a naughty eye and plenty of scenery with her short skirts, and come out of it with a pension or something like that."

"Your testimony would avenge poor Thurber, Mert."

"But it won't bring him back to life and why ruin my life, why lose wealthy Nina Paxton for me?"

[illegible] that he was planning to get that [illegible] Thurber's effects to find cancelled checks, receipted bills and the like to use as evidence that Viola had no honor whatever to preserve from Thurber.

Suspected Spying

[illegible] tempered and proud.

* * *

"Next week I'll be going with Mrs. Shelton and some other of my church friends, Dick," Ethel told him, "and as I know this doesn't interest you much, I won't expect you to come along."

"I'd go anywhere with you, darling, anywhere—everywhere," Dick declared.

"I know you would—it's awfully nice of you, Dick."

"And when we are married I'll go to church with you every time you ask, darling."

"That's awfully sweet of you, too, Dick."

[illegible] a great deal of happiness [illegible] expected [illegible] approved.

"Dick's in love," Mrs. Walters told Cicily, "and from what you saw and from what Sid and Dick says she is a remarkably lovely girl—that is going to be the making of him."

Almost Too Good

"To imagine him going three times to revival meetings in a week," Dick's adoring mother went on. "It is almost too good to be true. After all, my only son is going to make me a very proud mother."

She talked with Dick about it.

"Well, I didn't go for the sake of being 'saved,' mother," he told her, "no use bluffing like that. I went because Ethel wanted to."

"You make mother very proud, son—when a boy is influenced for good by a good girl it means that he is naturally good at heart. I used to be afraid you'd get to drinking too much and I used to worry about some of the women you went around with——"

"That's all over with, mother—of course I have a glass of beer now and then with the boys, but no more souse parties, no more girls."

DEMANDS UNEMPLOYMENT AID ON 'SANE BASIS' ONLY

To the Senate and House of epresent[illegible]

I have the honor to comply with the requirement of the Constitution that I should lay before the Congress information as to the state of the Union, and recommend consideration of such easures as are necessary and xpedient.

Substanti[illegible]

ECONOMIC SITUATION

During the past 12 months we ave suffered with other nations om economic depression.

The origins of this depression [illegible] wn borders through a speculative period which diverted capital [illegible] into speculation ther than constructive enterprise. Had over-speculation in [illegible] been the only force operating we should have seen recovery many months ago as ese particular dislocations have generally readjusted themselves.

Other deep-seated causes have een in action however, chiefly e world-wide overproduction beond even the demand of prosperous times for such important asic commodities as wheat, rubber, coffee, sugar, copper, silver, nc, to some extent cotton and her raw materials.

The ultimate effect of demoralng price falls of these important commodities in the process of adjustment [illegible] ployment in [illegible] ations.

The political [illegible] volutions in South A[illegible] litical unrest in some European ates the methods of sale by ussia of her increasing agricultural exports to European markets and our own drought have contributed to prolong and deepen the depression.

In the larger view the major rces of the depression now lie itside of the United States, and ir recuperation has been reded by the unwarranted degree of fear and apprehension eated by these outside forces.

STORY IN FIGURES

Value of department store sales per cent of 1928.

Wholesale prices—all commodes, 83 per cent of 1928.

Cost of living, 94 per cent of 28.

Various other indexes indicate tal decrease of activity from 28 of from 15 to 2[illegible] per cent.

There are many factors which ve encouragement for the future. The fact that we are holding from 80 to 85 per cent of our rmal activities and incomes; at our major financial and instrial institutions have come rough the storm unimpaired; at price levels of major commodities have remained approximately stable for some time; that number of industries are showing [illegible]

We should remember that these casions have been met many nes before, that they are but mporary, that our country is day stronger and richer in reurces, in equipment, in skill, an ever in its history. We are an extraordinary degree selfstaining, we will overcome orld influences and will lead the rch of prosperity as we have ways done hitherto.

SHOULD NOT HOARD

Economic depression cannot be red by legislative action or executive pronouncement. Economic wounds must be healed by the tion of the cells of the economic body—the producers and nsumers themselves. Recovery n be expedited and its effects tigated by co-operative action.

That co-operation requires that ery individual should sustain ith and courage; that each ould maintain his self-reliance; at each and every one should arch for methods of improving s business or service; that the st majority whose income is impaired should not hoard out fear but should pursue their rmal living and recreations; at each should seek to assist s neighbors who may be less rtunate, that each industry ould assist its own employes, at each community and each ate should assume its full reonsibilities for organization of nployment and relief of distress ith that sturdiness and indeendence which built a great naon.

Our people are responding to [illegible] describe deeds.

The best contribution of government lies in encouragement of this voluntary co-operation in the community. The government, national, state, and local, can join with the community in such programs and do its part. A year [illegible] ings have been adhered to and we have not witnessed the usual reduction of wages which have always heretofore marked depressions. The index of union wage scales shows them to be today fully up to the level of any of [illegible] years.

In consequence the buying power of the country has been much larger than would otherwise have been the case. Of equal importance the nation has had unusual peace in industry and freedom from the public disorder which has characterized previous depressions.

BUILDING ON BOOM

The second direction of co-operation has been that our government, national, state and local, the industries and business so distribute employment as to give work to the maximum number of employes.

The third direction of co-operation has been to maintain and even extend construction work and betterment in anticipation of future need. [illegible] that public [illegible] construction has [illegible] tide of depression.

On this occasion, however, the increased authorization and generous appropriations by the Congress and the action of states and municipalities have resulted in the expansion of public construction to an amount even above that in the most prosperous years.

[illegible] the co-operation [illegible] railways and [illegible] has been [illegible] construction and betterment work in anticipation of future need. The Department of Commerce advises me that as a result, the volume of this type of construction work, which amounted to roughly $6,300,000,000 in 1929, instead of decreasing will show a total of about $7,000,000,000 for 1930. There has, of course, been a substantial decrease in the types of construction which could not be undertaken in advance of need.

The fourth direction of co-operation was the organization in such states and municipalities, as was deemed necessary, of committees to organize local employment, to provide for employment agencies, and to effect relief of distress.

The result of magnificent co-operation throughout the country has been that actual suffering has been kept to a minimum during the past 12 months, and our unemployment has been far less in proportion than in other large industrial countries.

PRAISES SPIRIT

Some time ago it became evident that unemployment would continue over the winter and would necessarily be added to from seasonal causes and that the savings of workpeople would be more largely depleted.

We have as a nation a definite duty to see that no deserving person in our country suffers from hunger or cold. I therefore set up a more extensive organization to stimulate more intensive co-operation throughout the country.

There has been a most gratifying degree of response from governors, mayors, and other public officials, from welfare organizations, and from employers in concerns both large and small. The local communities through their voluntary agencies have assumed the duty of relieving individual distress and are being generously supported by the public.

The number of those wholly out of employment seeking for work was accurately determined by the census last April as about 2,500,000. The Department of Labor index of employment in the larger trades shows some increase in employment since that time.

NOT ALL IN NEED

The intensive community and individual efforts in providing special employment outside the listed industries are not reflected in the statistical indexes, and tend to reduce such published figures. Moreover, there is estimated to be a constant figure at all times of nearly 1,000,000 unemployed who are not without annual income but temporarily idle in the shift from one job to another. We have an average of about three breadwinners to each two families, so that every person unemployed does not represent a family without income.

The view that the relief problems are less than the gross numbers would indicate is confirmed by the experience of several cities, which shows that the number of families in distress represents from 10 to 20 per cent of the number of the calculated unemployed. This is not said to minimize the very real problem which exists but to weigh its actual proportions.

As a contribution to the situation the Federal government engaged upon the greatest program of waterway, harbor, flood control, public building, highway and airway improvement in all our history.

This, together with loans to merchant shipbuilders, improvement of the navy and in military aviation, and other construction work of the government will exceed $520,000,000 for this fiscal year. This compares with $253,000,000 in the fiscal year 1928.

The construction work already authorized and the continuation of policies in government aid will require a continual expenditure upwards of half a billion dollars annually.

I favor still further temporary expansion of these activities in aid to unemployment during this winter. The Congress will, however, have presented to it numbers of projects, some of them under the guise of, rather than the reality of, their usefulness in the increase of employment during the depression. There are certain commonsense limitations upon any expansions of construction work.

ASKS MILLIONS

The government must not undertake works that are not of sound economic purpose and that have not been subject to searching technical investigation and which have not been given adequate consideration by the Congress.

The volume of construction work in the government is already at the maximum limit warranted by financial prudence as a continuing policy.

To increase taxation for purposes of construction work defeats its own purpose, as such taxes directly diminish employment in private industry. Again, any kind of construction requires, after its authorization, a considerable time before labor can be employed in which to make engineering, architectural and legal preparations.

Our immediate problem is the increase of employment for the next six months, and new plans which do not produce such immediate result or which extend commitment beyond this period are not warranted.

The enlarged rivers and harbors, public building, and highway plans authorized by the Congress last session, however, offer an opportunity for assistance by the temporary acceleration of construction of these programs even faster than originally planned, especially if the technical requirements of the laws which entail great delays could be amended in such fashion as to speed up acquirements of land and the letting of contracts.

With view, however, to the possible need for acceleration, we immediately, upon receiving those authorities from the Congress five months ago, began the necessary technical work in preparation for such possible eventuality.

I have canvassed the departments of the government as to the maximum amount that can be properly added to our present expenditure to accelerate all construction during the next six months, and I feel warranted in asking the Congress for an appropriation of from $100,000,000 to $150,000,000 to provide such further employment in this emergency.

In connection therewith we need some authority to make enlarged temporary advances of federal-highway aid to the states.

I recommend that this appropriation be made distributable to the different departments upon recommendation of a committee of the Cabinet and approval by the President. Its application to works already authorized by the Congress assures its use in directions of economic importance and to public welfare. Such action will imply an expenditure upon construction of all kinds of over $650,000,000 during the next 12 months.

ON AGRICULTURE

The world-wide depression has affected agriculture in common with all other industries. The average price of farm produce has fallen to about 80 per cent of the levels of 1928. This average is, however, greatly affected by wheat and cotton which have participated in world wide overproduction and have fallen to about 60 per cent of the average price of 1928. Excluding these commodities, the prices of all other agricultural products are about 84 per cent of those of 1928. The average wholesale prices of the primary goods, such as nonferrous metals, have fallen to 76 per cent of 1928.

The price levels of our major agricultural commodities are, in fact, higher than those in other principal producing countries, due to the combined result of the tariff and the operations of the Farm Board. For instance, wheat prices at Minneapolis are about 30 per cent higher than at Winnipeg, and at Chicago they are about 20 per cent higher than at Buenos Aires. Corn prices at Chicago are over twice as high as at Buenos Aires. Wool prices average more than 80 per cent higher in this country than abroad, and butter is 30 per cent higher in New York City than in Copenhagen.

Aside from the misfortune to agriculture of the world-wide depression we have had the most severe drought. It has affected particularly the States bordering on the Potomac, Ohio, and Lower Mississippi Rivers, with some areas in Montana, Kansas, Oklahoma, and Texas. It has found its major expression in the shortage of pasturage and a shrinkage in the corn crop from an average of about 2,800,000,000 bushels to about 2,090,000,000 bushels.

FARM LOAN EXTENDED

An August 14 I called a conference of the governors of the most acutely affected states and as a result of its conclusion I appointed a national committee comprising the heads of the important federal agencies under the chairmanship of the Secretary of Agriculture. The governors in turn have appointed state committees representative of the farmers, bankers, business men and the Red Cross and subsidiary committees have been established in most of the acutely affected counties. Railway rates were reduced on feed and livestock in and out of the drought areas, and over 50,000 cars of such products have been transported under these reduced rates. The Red Cross established a preliminary fund of $5,000,000 for distress relief purposes and established agencies for its administration in each county. Of this fund less than $500,000 has been called for up to this time as the need will appear more largely during the winter. The federal farm loan board has extended its credit facilities, and the federal farm board has given financial assistance to all affected co-operatives.

In order that the Government may meet its full obligation toward our countrymen in distress through no fault of their own, I recommend that an appropriation should be made to the Department of Agriculture to be loaned for the purpose of seed and feed for animals. Its application should as hitherto in such loans be limited to a gross amount to any one individual, and secured upon the crop.

The Red Cross can relieve the cases of individual distress by the sympathetic assistance of our people.

I shall submit the detailed financial position of the government with recommendations in the usual budget message. I will at this time however mention that the budget estimates of receipts and expenditures for the current year were formulated by the Treasury and the budget bureau at a time when it was impossible to forecast the severity of the business depression and have been most seriously affected by it. At that time a surplus of about $123,000,000 was estimated for this fiscal year and tax reduction which affected the fiscal year to the extent of $75,000,000 was authorized by the Congress, thus reducing the estimated surplus to about $48,000,000.

Closely revised estimates now made by the Treasury and the Bureau of the Budget of the tax, postal, and other receipts for the current fiscal year indicate a decrease of about $430,000,000 from the estimate of a year ago, of which about $75,000,000 is due to tax reduction, leaving about $355,000,000 due to the depression.

Moreover, legislation enacted by Congress subsequent to the submission of the Budget enlarging Federal construction work to expand employment and for increase in veterans' services and other items, have increased expenditures during the current fiscal year by about $225,000,000.

SPEED CONSTRUCTION

Thus the decrease of $430,000,000 in revenue and the increase of $225,000,000 in expenditure adversely change the original Budget situation by about $655,000,000. This large sum is offset by the original estimated surplus a year ago of about $123,000,000, by the application of $185,000,000 of interest payments upon the foreign debt to current expenditures, by arrangements of the Farm Board through repayments, etc., in consequence of which they reduced their net cash demands upon the treasury by $100,000,000 in this period, and by about $67,000,000 economies and deferments brought about in the government thus reducing the practical effect of the change in the situation to an estimated deficit of about $180,000,000 for the present fiscal year.

I shall make suggestions for handling the present-year deficit in the Budget message, but I do not favor encroachment upon the statutory reduction of the public debt.

While it will be necessary in public interest to further increase expenditures during the current fiscal year in aid to unemployment by speeding up construction work and aid to the farmers affected by the drought, I can not emphasize too strongly the absolute necessity to defer any other plans for increase of Government expenditures. The Budget for 1932 fiscal year indicates estimated expenditure of about $4,054,000,000, including postal deficit. The receipts are estimated at about $4,085,000,000 if the temporary tax reduction of last year be discontinued, leaving a surplus of only about $30,000,000. Most rigid economy is therefore necessary to avoid increase in taxes.

NATIONAL DEFESE.

Our army and navy are being maintained at a high state of efficiency, under officers of high training and intelligence supported by a devoted personnel of the rank and file. The London naval treaty has brought important economies in the conduct of the navy. The Navy Department will lay before the committees of the Congress recommendations for a program of authorization of new construction which should be initiated in the fiscal year of 1932.

This is the last session of the Seventy-first Congress. During its previous sittings it has completed a very large amount of important legislation, notably: The establishment of the Federal Farm Board; fixing congressional reapportionment; revision of the tariff, including the flexible provisions and a reorganization of the Tariff Commission; reorganization of the Radio Commission; reorganization of the Federal Power Commission; expansion of Federal prisons; reorganization of parole and probation system in Federal prisons; expansion of veterans' hospitals; establishment of disability allowances to veterans; consolidation of veteran activities, consolidation and strengthening of prohibition enforcement activities in the Department of Justice; organization of a Narcotics Bureau; large expansion of rivers and harbors improvements; substantial increase in Federal highways; enlargement of public buildings construction program; and the ratification of the London naval treaty.

The Congress has before it legislation completed in the last sitting in respect to Muscle Shoals, bus regulation, relief of congestion in the courts, reorganization of border patrol in prevention of smuggling, law enforcement in the District of Columbia, and other subjects. It is desirable that these measures should be completed.

The short session does not permit of extensive legislative programs, but there are a number of questions which if time does not permit action I recommend should be placed in consideration by the Congress, perhaps through committees co-operating in some instances with the Federal departments, with view to preparation for subsequent action. Among them are the following subjects.

INTERSTATE POWER

I have in a previous message recommended effective regulation of interstate electrical power. Such regulation should preserve the independence and responsibility of the states.

We have determined upon a national policy of consolidation of the railways as a necessity of more stable and more economically operated transportation. Further legislation is necessary to facilitate such consolidation. In the public interest we should strengthen the railways that they may meet our future needs.

I recommend that the Congress institute an inquiry into some aspects of the economic working of these laws. I do not favor repeal of the Sherman Act. The prevention of monopolies is of most vital public importance. Competition is not only the basis of protection to the consumer, but is the incentive to progress.

However, the interpretation of these laws by the courts, the changes in business, especially in the economic effects upon those enterprises closely related to the use of the natural resources of the country, make such an inquiry advisable. The producers of these materials assert that certain unfortunate results of wasteful and destructive use of these natural resources, together with a destructive competition which impoverishes both operator and worker, cannot be remedied because of the prohibitive interpretation of the anti-trust laws. The well-known condition of the bituminous coal industry is an illustration. The people have a vital interest in the conservation of their natural resources; in the prevention of wasteful practices; in conditions of destructive competition which may impoverish the producer and the wage earner, and they have an equal interest in maintaining adequate competition. I therefore suggest that an inquiry be directed especially to the effect of the workings of the anti-trust laws in these particular fields to determine if these evils can be remedied without sacrifice of the fundamental purpose of these laws.

INCOME TAX STUDY

It is urged by many thoughtful citizens that the peculiar economic effect of the income tax on so-called capital gains at the present rate is to enhance speculative inflation and likewise impede business recovery. I believe this to be the case, and I recommend that a study be made of the economic effects of this tax and of its relation to the general structure of our income tax law.

There is need for revision of our immigration laws upon a more limited and more selective basis, flexible to the needs of the country.

Under conditions of current unemployment it is obvious that persons coming to the United States seeking work would likely become either a direct or indirect public charge. As a temporary measure the officers issuing visas to immigrants have been, in pursuance of the law, instructed to refuse visas to applicants likely to fall into this class. As a result, the visas have decreased from an average of about 24,000 per month prior to restriction to a rate of about 7,000 during the last month. These are largely preferred persons under the law. Visas from Mexico are about 250 per month compared to about 4000 previous to restrictions. The whole subject requires exhaustive reconsideration.

CRIMINAL ALIENS

I urge the strengthening of our deportation laws so as to more fully rid ourselves of criminal aliens. Furthermore, thousands of persons have entered the country in violation of the immigration laws. The very method of their entry indicates their objectionable character, and our law-abiding foreign-born residents suffer in consequence. I recommend that the Congress provide methods of strengthening the government to correct this abuse.

Due to deferment of government building over many years, previous administrations had been compelled to enter upon types of leases for secondary facilities in large cities, some of which were objectionable as representing too high a return upon the value of the property. To prevent the occasion for further uneconomic leasing I recommend that the Congress authorize the building by the government of its own facilities.

The Nation has generously expanded its care for veterans. The consolidation of all veterans' activities into the Veterans' Administration has produced substantial administrative economies. The consolidation also brings emphasis to the inequalities in service and allowances. The whole subject is under study by the administrator, and I recommend it should also be examined by the committees of the Congress.

I urge further consideration by the Congress of the recommendations I made a year ago looking to be developed through temporary Federal aid of adequate State and local services for the health of children and the further stamping out of communicable disease, particularly in the rural sections. The advance of scientific discovery, methods, and social thought imposes a new vision in these matters. The drain upon the Federal Treasury is comparatively small. The results both economic and moral are of the utmost importance.

ACT ON DEPRESSION

It is my belief that after the passing of this depression, when we can examine it in retrospect, we shall need to consider a number of other questions as to what action may be taken by the Government to remove possible governmental influences which make for instability and to better organize mitigation of the effect of depression. It is as yet too soon to constructively formulate such measures.

There are many administrative subjects, such as departmental reorganization, extension of the Civil Service, readjustment of the postal rates, etc., which at some appropriate time require the attention of the Congress.

Our relations with foreign countries have been maintained upon a high basis of cordiality and good will.

During the past year the London naval pact was completed, approved by the Senate, and ratified by the governments concerned. By this treaty we have abolished competition in the building of warships, have established the basis of parity of the United States with the strongest of foreign powers, and have accomplished a substantial reduction in war vessels.

During the year there has been an extended political unrest in the world. Asia continues in disturbed condition, and revolutions have taken place in Brazil, Argentina, Peru and Bolivia. Despite the jeopardy to our citizens and their property which naturally arises in such circumstances, we have, with the co-operation of the governments concerned, been able to meet all such instances without friction.

We have resumed normal relations with the new Governments of Brazil, Argentina, Peru and Bolivia immediately upon evidence that they were able to give protection to our citizens and their property, and that they recognized their international obligations.

HAITIAN POLICY

A commission which was supported by the Congress has completed its investigation and reported upon our future policies in respect to Haiti and proved of high values in securing the acceptance of these policies. An election has been held and a new Government established. We have replaced our high commissioner by a minister and have begun the gradual withdrawal of our activities with view to complete retirement at the expiration of the present treaty in 1935.

A number of arbitration and conciliation treaties have been completed or negotiated during the year, and will be presented for approval by the Senate.

I shall, in a special message, lay before the Senate the protocols covering the statutes of the World Court, which have been revised to accord with the sense of previous Senate reservations.

Outstanding Features in President's Message

ECONOMIC DEPRESSION

During the past 12 months we have suffered with other nations from economic depression.

There are many factors which give encouragement for the future. The fact that we are holding from 80 to 85 per cent of our normal incomes.

As a contribution to the situation the federal government is engaged upon the greatest program of waterway, harbor, flood control, public building, highway and airway improvement in all our history. This, together with loans to merchant shipbuilders, improvement of the navy and in military aviation and other construction work will exceed $520,000,000 for this fiscal year. This compares with $253,000,000 in the fiscal year 1928.

AGRICULTURE.

In order that our country may meet its full obligation toward our countrymen in distress through no fault of their own I recommend that an appropriation should be made to the Department of Agriculture to be loaned for the purpose of seed and feed for animals.

GOVERNMENT FINANCES

Closely revised estimates of receipts indicate a decrease of about $430,000,000 from the estimate of a year ago, of which about $75,000,000 is due to tax reduction leaving about $355,000,000 due to the depression.

The practical result of the change in the situation is an estimated deficit of about $180,000,000 for the present fiscal year.

"I shall make suggestions for handling the present-year deficit in the budget message, but I do not favor encroachment upon the statutory reduction of the public debt."

NATIONAL DEFENSE

The Navy Department will lay before the committees of Congress recommendation for a program of authorization of new construction which should be initiated in the fiscal year 1932.

ELECTRICAL POWER:

RAILWAYS

We have determined upon a national policy of consolidation of the railways as a necessity of more stable and more economically operated transportation. Further legislation is necessary to facilitate such consolidation.

ANTI-TRUST LAWS.

Increase of Employment Is Immediate Problem

"Our immediate problem is the increase of employment for the next six months, and new plans which do not produce such immediate results or which extend commitments beyond this period are not warranted.

"I feel warranted in asking Congress for an appropriation of from $100,000,000 to $150,000,000 to provide such further employment in this emergency."

Hoover Warns Congress Not Go on Wild Splurge

ditional federal building in the next six months, and that a sum be set aside for the Department of Agriculture for seed and feed loans to farmers. He did not name this latter figure, but the amount, it is understood, will be about $60,000,000.

Mr. Hoover rather exhaustively analyzed the economic situation both at home and abroad. The depression, he said, is world wide in scope, due to over-production of basic materials, political unrest and other cause.

ENCOURAGING SIGNS

"There are many factors which give encouragement for the future," he said. "The fact we are holding from 80 to 85 per cent of our normal activities and incomes; that our major financial and industrial institutions have come through the storm unimpaired; that price levels of major commodities have remained approximately stable for some time; that a number of industries are showing signs of increasing demand; that the world at large is readjusting itself to the situation; all reflect grounds for confidence.

"We should remember that these occasions have been met many times before, that they are but temporary, that our country today is stronger and richer in resources, in equipment and skill than ever in its history."

"The result of magnificent co-operation throughout the country," he said, "has been that actual suffering has been kept to a minimum during the past 12 months, and our unemployment has been far less in proportion than in other large industrial centers.

"We have as a nation a definite duty to see that no deserving person in our country suffers from hunger or cold."

JOBLESS INCREASED

Mr. Hoover did not attempt to estimate the number of unemployed, other than the 2,500,000 cited by the last census, which he said was accurate. There has been some increase over that figure since April, he admitted.

The President strongly admonished Congress not to embark on any spending sprees at this session. There will be a deficit in the treasury of approximately $180,000,000 this fiscal year anyway, and only by rigid economy can it come out next year with a small surplus.

"Most rigid economy is therefore necessary," he said, "to avoid increase in taxes."

"There is need," he said, "for revision of our immigration laws upon a more limited and more selective basis, flexible to the needs of the country. The whole subject requires exhaustive consideration."

As for foreign relations, Mr. Hoover reported them in excellent condition. He pointed with pride to the negotiation of the London naval treaty, which, he said "abolished competition in the building of warships" and insured the United States of "parity with the strongest of foreign powers."

Concerning the World Court which is likely to provoke a serious controversy and menace his plans for avoiding an extra session of the new Congress, the President said he would submit that issue to Congress in a special message.

'AUDACIOUS' MAKES HARVARD MEN BLUSH

No. End Women Win Bathhouse Fight

HOW THE STORY STARTS

Wilda Gardner, bookkeeper in a hardware store, is in love with Logan Townsend, who "has not spoken yet."

He is no Adonis, Wilda thinks, but he has a rare smile. This smile also attracts Bess Avery, a stenographer in an office near Logan's. Wilda's mother, Garcie, has been strangely distracted since the father died. He is understood to have left much money and she plans to leave the poor little cottage in which they live in Boston and get in touch with a richer life. Logan takes Myrtle to the party and Wilda assumes gaiety she does not feel.

By MAY CHRISTIE

(Copyright, 1930.)

AND AS nothing succeeds like success Wilda had plenty of partners, because men have a sheeplike tendency to follow each other.

But it was all dust and ashes to the girl, this party.

"They're still sitting out there, she billing and cooing up at him!" Coral had drawn Wilda momentarily aside, in a pause of the music. "It just makes me sick. I'm going right out and stop them."

Anything to Bluff
Coral Watched Her

"Why Coral, you're foolish! Don't you know that the big he-men do exactly as thy please these days? And divvil take us women?"

Heaven! what foolishness was she saying?

But anything to bluff everybody, bluff even Coral.

"You're as white as a ghost. Why can't you rouge a bit like the other girls, Wilda? This irritably.

"Haven't my fatal charms done pretty well tonight without paint or war powder?"

"They haven't, because I don't believe you give two hoots for any of those boys you've been dancing with. Oh, you're a good fellow, Wilda, but if you care for Logan Townsend and you let him slip through your fingers, I'll say you're nothing but a damn fool!"

And with that she took her friend firmly by the arm and drew her out of the room

Wilda Tells Coral

"What's the big idea, Coral? Why the excitement?"

"We're going right upstairs and fix your face. I'm not going to have you looking like—Hamlet's ghost!"

"Me? Why, you're crazy! I'm having the time of my life!"

"All right. Then you shall look the part. I'm not going to have that cat Myrtle Gleeson putting it all over you."

Coral was a staunch friend. This gruffness only meant her loyalty. The lump in Wilda's throat threatened to suffocate her.

She allowed Coral to lead her into the guest-chamber, on the bureau of which was set forth an array of rouge, and eyebrow stuff, and eyelid "shadow" paste and lip salve and powder.

"You know I worked in a beauty-parlor once. These tokens are the salvage." Coral picked up a cold cream jar. "Here, smear this over your face."

"I'm booked for the next dance. And dolling-up doesn't suit me a bit, Coral.

"Nonsense! You do what I say." Coral was adamant.

She made up Wilda's face in a swift, decisive manner

Coral was huffed at that. She still fancied herself an expert

"When he sees you like this . . . your features made more vivid . . . you've very good features, Wilda, only you're naturally too pale . . . I guarantee there won't be any more flirting on his part with that man-eating vamp Myrtle!"

CURLEY SIGNS FOR $125,000 STRUCTURE

Present Building at Park Unfit for Use, Says Mayor; Council to Act

Women residents of the North and West Ends today won their five-year fight to have a new bathhouse erected for them at North End Park when Mayor Curley drafted an order for the construction of such a building at a cost of $125,000.

The order will be acted upon by the city council on December 15 and if favorable action is taken construction will start early next year.

FIREPROOF LOCKERS

The bathhouse will contain fireproof lockers, showers and laundry equipment.

The mayor said the present structure for women at the park is unfit for further use and that he had planned to construct a new building at that place during his last administration but his term expired before plans could be completed.

IMPROVEMENTS AT FIELD

The mayor also drafted an order for construction of a locker building at Billings Field, West Roxbury at a cost of $25,000. This order also will be acted upon at the next City Council meeting.

A contract for the construction of an addition to the William Ellery Channing School in Hyde Park was awarded to the Hub Construction Company, lowest bidder, at a cost of $67,983.

The mayor also approved the retirement of Patrolman Thomas H. Galligan of the Lagrange st. station, who has reached the retirement age of 65.

WOMEN'S SHOP IS LOOTED

The larceny of $10,000 worth of women's coats and dresses, in an attempt to loot the entire stock of the shop of Miss Helen Crosby, 281 Dartmouth st., was reported to the police today.

The stolen goods comprised one-quarter of the stock of the shop, and the remainder was piled up on the floor ready to be removed.

The thieves entered the shop by forcing a window on the second floor rear immediately behind the exclusive Chilton Club.

Police found evidence that fur coats, fur trimmed coats and expensive gowns had been hurled through a window to the ground, and then gathered up and carried away.

It is believed the burglars were frightened away before they could complete looting the shop.

Director Institute of Homemaking, Boston University; Assistant Director Garland School of Homemaking

WHEN WOMEN come to us, saying that their incomes have been cut and asking us what to do, we discover that each has a mental picture of the kind of home she desires and that her problem is individual.

Where can they reduce without impairing health, is our first consideration.

It is difficult to lay down rules for the general public because if you have just so much money it is logical that you will buy what you value most. That all comes back to getting your money's worth.

This whole financial depression, except where it has caused actual want, is going to promote better standards of choice.

Where we bought coats for the kind of fur on the collar we will now buy coats for warmth and durability. We have a better sense of values.

Through store salesmanship and advertising we have been taught to appreciate line, design and color, and almost everything except the essential value of an article—its serviceability.

MRS. GLADYS BECKETT JONES

As an illustration, we have learned to desire sheerness in silk hosiery, without knowing anything about evenness of weave or weight of thread. These are important, if wear is to be considered.

We never ask about the leather in shoes—we buy for design without a thought for wearing quality.

Where can we get a knowledge of values? We have lost the touch of our grandmothers for linens and wools, and we cannot learn these things in a minute.

It is true that some stores have testing bureaus, and test the fabrics that they offer for sale. These stores sell on their integrity.

I visited such a store and found them testing the threads in many silk stockings on the market, trying to determine which would wear best. They do the same with blankets and other things sold over their counters. This is a decided help to the buyer.

Boston high schools are doing a wonderful job teaching girls real worth in the buying of home commodities, but girls are not spending the incomes just now. This training is coming too late for the average homemaker of this generation, who had no training either from old-fashioned mothers or from schools. These women were confident that they would always have money with which to buy, and much of the merchandise they purchased was not a wise investment.

But I hope to see the day when the homemaker who has analyzed her problem can take it direct to the store and receive intelligent, trained advice on the selection of merchandise in place of high-pressure sales, forced on consumers, with the assurance that the article is fashionable or smart.

We need to have the durability of plain white bed sheets explained to us rather than the "smartness" of fancy colored sheets—and other things in proportion.

Personally, I think it is not going to take a long period to bring women back to the study of fundamentals of living. They are interested.

TATLER HAS 'CLASSIFIED' THEM AS IT DID DEBS

Athletic Stars Are Away Down in the List; Some Are "Z"; Ben Ticknor Not Mentioned

The faces of Harvard students went from pink to red today when that frank person "Audacious," who had the "audacity" to classify Boston debbies in The Tatler magazine a short time ago, did so and likewise in the same magazine for the more select of Harvard undergraduates.

And the names of Harvard's athletes [illegible]

HOW THEY CLASS

Hallowells: John, Pen, Roger." There are three brothers.

Amor Hollingsworth: "What I said about his deb sister holds." The sister, Evelyn L. Hollingsworth led the "A" list in the debbies article of several weeks ago.

SOME NOTABLE "Z'S"

In the B [illegible] are James Aver, Jr., George Bristol, James Bavy [illegible] and Graydon Upton, the last being commented upon as "Prince of Grain."

The "Z" list includes Art Huguley, who starred this fall for Harvard on the gridiron; Eugene ("Red") Record, track star and football man of Brookline, and George Talbot, husky guard.

Of the Class A-1 men, "Audacious" declares

"This list is the A-1 boys who are invited to all the smartest debutante affairs. This group is invited to everything. When more than 250 men are needed as at balls, etc., additional men are invited, but these men received the cream of all the invitations."

WHY THEY'RE "Z'S"

"If a man goes to Harvard and makes a varsity team," says "Audacious" at another point, "he usually makes the good clubs and therefore 'rates' at Harvard. But many who 'rate' at Harvard do not 'rate' socially in Boston. Therefore the names of many men who are prominent in football (not so much this year), hockey, baseball—are on the 'Z' list.

"Though lots of the debs will not understand why many temporary heroes are set here, the reason is that as soon as they finish college they will drop back into their lowly niches, whereas the 'A's' and 'B's' will always retain their natural stati."

PARDON ASKED BY MANSTER

Harry R. Manster, 41, serving a life sentence for the murder of Joseph L. Reiser, Boston patrolman, in January, 1918, today told the advisory board of pardons in State prison that he knew nothing of the killing of the officer.

Manster, who has served 12 years in State prison, said he was not armed on the day of the murder. He admitted being on the top floor of teh apartment house on Jersey st. and hearing the shots on a lower floor.

Manster cited the fact that he has served 12 years and said he was convicted on circumstantial evidence.

Six families including 10 children, two of them babies, were routed by fire in a six-family brick apartment house at 256 Walnut ave., Roxbury, last night.

When Mrs. Harry Katzman saw smoke coming through the floor of her apartment she was giving her baby Joan Ruth, a bath. Hastily wrapping the infant in a blanket she rushed to the street and sounded an alarm.

Another mother, Mrs. Celia Finn, after carrying her 14-months-old son Jason to the street, rushed back into the burning building to help others. She gave her baby to a neighbor to care for while she went to the assistance of other tenants.

Six families in an adjoining building were also forced from their apartments by the dense smoke. A defective incinerator was said to have been the cause of the blaze. Damage was estimated at $5000.

CITY GETS VET REFUND CHECK FOR $1066

Commissioner of Soldiers' Relief Turns Over the Money Paid Back in Frauds

Capt. John J. Lydon, commissioner of soldiers' relief for the City of Boston, today sent to City Collector William M. McMorrow a check for $1066, representing refunds from veterans who were found to have been receiving aid illegally.

This money cannot under the law be used for relief of other veterans, but must be turned into the general fund of the city.

From a veteran who said his conscience bothered him because of $10 aid received in 1922, Commissioner Lydon received a check for $40. This veteran now holds a responsible position in another city. He said he had not been warned by the city to return the money, but wanted to satisfy his own sense of right.

A cash pyament of $3 was also received by Lydon, this being an installment payment of money illegally obtained. Asst Corp. Counsel Hale Power received six letters containing money orders and checks totaling $25. Power is working with Lydon on the matter.

State Comdr. Richard F. Paul of the American Legion in a letter to the soldiers' relief department head today commended him for his action and offered co-operation.

"The greatest trouble the honest and worthwhile veteran finds is the criticism caused by the 'goldbrickers,' whose actions unthinking people believe to be typical of the heart and soul of the worthwhile veteran organization," wrote Comdr. Paul.

DEER HUNTER SHOT BY FRIEND, ANOTHER DYING FROM EXPOSURE

INJURED MAN DRIVES OWN CAR TO AID

Many Bucks Bagged as Season Opens; One Felled With Butt of Rifle

Accidentally shot in the back by his companion, a hunter was seriously wounded today at Chester, while another man, out for deer in the western part of the state, was found dying from exposure to the cold.

Coupled with reports of casualties to hunters came word of a large number of deer killed on the opening day of the season.

Frank E. Simlick, 33, of 10 Bristol st., Westfield, was shot in the back near Chester Hill while hunting with James B. Bresnahan, 27, of Cr[illegible] st., Westfield. They heard a rustle and Bresnahan dropped to his knee to cock his rifle. A jar discharged it.

PASSES THROUGH BODY.

With his companion's assistance he walked a quarter of a mile through the woods to his parked car and then, because Bresnahan could not drive, he drove himself half a mile to the nearest house. He was taken to Noble Hospital at Westfield, where his condition was said to be critical.

Percy W[illegible], a farm hand at East Otis, was found dying from exposure near that town today. He went deer hunting yesterday.

A bullet crashed through the windshield of a car driven by Rev. C. Leonard Holton, pastor of the Raynham Congregational Church, as he was passing through Stoughton late yesterday, it was learned today. He was cut by flying glass.

BAGS BIG BUCK

Twice Holmes fired and twice he hit his quarry, but failed to down it and the wounded animal suddenly turned on him, forcing Holmes to defend himself with the butt of his gun, until the deer finally fell dead.

In North New Salem, Harry W. Fay sighted two deer browsing in a field in the rear of his house. He procured a shotgun, crept up behind a wall and brought down a buck.

Among the successful ones were Santo Rocco of Worcester, who got a buck in Barre, and W. H. Tower, who reported killing a doe in New Salem.

The Mojave started yesterday and will remain at sea a week, returning to be relieved by the Tampa. These two will base at Boston, the Ossipee operating out of Portland, the Acushnet from Woods Hole.

Many Families Face Cheerless Christmas

Cold nights of early December are nights of happiness in many homes. There is much planning to be done, long lists of names to be written, long hours for deciding the nature of gifts for father or mother, sister and brother.

Then there is the Christmas dinner to be considered. And so many, many other things which folks in comfortable circumstances provide for at Christmas time as a matter of course.

And there are thousands of other families, not so fortunate, in homes that are cold for want of fuel, forlorn in the thought that Christmas will be just another day of hunger, terrified by the prospect of a winter of suffering.

Few people in comfortable circumstances can visualize the distress bared in letters sent to the Christmas Basket Fund Editor of the Boston Evening American. It is hard for them to imagine small children going to bed hungry and waking in a bitterly cold room only to face another day that brings no food.

Yet they exist—some of them probably in your own neighborhood. Their addresses are on file with the editor of the Basket Fund. You can help them by obtaining their addresses at this office or by sending a donation, small or large, to the Christmas Basket Fund of the Boston Evening American at 5 Winthrop sq.

Do not wait until the last week before Christmas to offer aid. There are many fathers and children—many of them of men out of work who have abandoned hope of Christmas gifts. They want only plain food and a little warm clothing. THEY NEED YOUR HELP. GIVE IT TO THEM TODAY.

Old Case Reopened by Suicide Attempt

By Eating or Drinking Something Sweet The Zero Hour Can Be Avoided

Millions of people engaged in business have the common problem of fighting fatigue in mid-afternoon. This condition is due, not only to the fact that energy has been expended during the early part of the day, but that business invariably speeds up in the afternoon and makes its greatest demands on the worker.

Scientific tests have proved that this mid-afternoon fatigue can be overcome or lessened materially by eating or drinking something sweet. The type of nourishment which has been used in the experiments are candy, ice cream, cookies, cakes, milk, carbonated beverages and the "athlete's cocktail"—a glass of water sweetened with sugar.

It is the sugar in these snacks that refreshes the system. Of all food products, none is more quickly digested than sugar and its energy becomes available immediately.

Since candy, cakes, ice cream and sweet beverages are within reach of nearly every one there is no need to endure the "gone" feeling during the daily zero hour. Most foods are more delicious and nourishing with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

Harmonic Strings

These are said to have been invented by Pythagoras about 540 B. C. through hearing four blacksmiths working with hammers on anvils in harmony. The hammers' weights were six, eight, nine and twelve pounds.

Why Waste Time if Boy's 'Not Serious?'

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

BEATRICE FAIRFAX will gladly answer questions regarding heart and home problems. Address her in care of the Boston American. Write on one side of the paper only. If you wish a personal answer enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope. Otherwise, questions of interest will be answered through her daily columns.

Miss Fairfax broadcasts over Station WLEX every evening except Saturday and Sunday at 6.15 p. m.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am in love with a young man and I went with him for two months "steady." One evening when we were together he acted queer and said he didn't want a steady [illegible]. We have spent only one evening together since, and then we had a quarrel and now do not speak. I am very popular with his people, and they tell me he talks about me a good deal. I do not go out with any other young men. Do you think I should waste my time on him?

H. B.

Beatrice Fairfax

Dear H. B.: The young man has told you plainly that he is not serious. Why waste any more time on him, trying to make him change his mind? As the proverb says, "there are as good fish in the sea as ever were caught."

A Perfect "Panorama"

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

The other night my husband and I had a good laugh over the anxiety of a bride who wrote you that her husband had the name "Lottie" tattooed on his arm. She didn't discover this 'till after she was married, and she is worried for fear this old sweetheart still might mean a good deal in her sailor husband's life. Please tell her that I had a similar experience. I married a marine. My husband had not only names tattooed on his arms, but pictures as well. I told him I wasn't sure whether I'd married a man or a panorama—but we get on fine. We've been married five years, and I've no cause for jealousy.

MARGARET B.

Dear Margaret: Congratulations on your very good sense in not worrying yourself over tattoo marks or other momentos of your husband's bachelor days. Letters, photographs, tattoo marks, collected before that eventful journey with you to the altar or justice of the peace, belong to a man's past, and a wife does well not to borrow trouble raking over the ashes. But not all women have your good judgment.

Her Love Wanes

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Two years ago I fell in love with a fellow I met at school. He never paid any attention to me, and always, treated me like a kid. He said some terrible things to me, things that should have made me hate him, but only made me love him more. But lately I have been seeing him and now he says that he loves me. He says he's sure of it, and I think he means it. But here's the funny part. After loving him and wanting him for two years I find now that he loves me, I don't love him so much at all. WHY is it Miss Fairfax? PLEASE tell me what to do.

RED HEAD

Dear Red Head: Your problem is not so unusual as you might think. It often happens that we want a thing very badly, and keep on wanting it as long as we can't have it. As soon as it becomes ours we lose interest in it. No doubt psychologists could explain this in some way, but you must not feel badly over it. You are not obliged to love someone if you have to force yourself to do it, so just treat him as a friend and don't let him interfere if other interests.

A False Yardstick

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm in love with a boy who works in the same store as I do. The more I see of him the more I love him. He's been paying me a lot of attention lately, but he never asked me out. He even asked me to be his friend. Should I wait till he asks me to go out with him or give him up? We've been working in the same place a long time but we never noticed each other till lately. Please help me out.

FRENCHY.

Dear Frenchy: Whether or not you accept his friendship depends on what you are looking for in a sweetheart. Perhaps he doesn't believe in spending much money on girls, and after all it is a rather foolish way of disposing of hard-earned cash. But some girls can never measure a man's affection except by the number of times he takes her out. It's a false yard stick, but they never seem to learn.

Over-Eating Is the Usual Cause of Gout

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

IN SOME form, gout is almost as common today in America as it used to be in England. It is due, not so much to excessive over-eating as it is to overeating in general.

Dr. Copeland

As a matter of fact, any diet rich in foods containing what scientists call "purines," may be harmful to a person who has a tendency to gout. The purines are chemical compounds found in the tissues of plants and animals.

Uric acid is an example. Caffeine present in tea and coffee, and theobromine found in tea and cocoa are other forms. Beef extract, liver, sweetbreads, brain and kidneys are rich in purines. Beef contains less than half as large a percentage of purine as liver.

Gout is a disease familiar to everybody. From the beginning of time jokes have been made about the poor victim of gout. But it is no laughing matter for one who has the ailment. Certainly the pain and discomfort from gout are excuse enough for the bad disposition of a saint.

In the acute attack of gout the patient should be put to bed and kept quiet. The foot with the inflamed joint should be elevated and kept warm.

Simple diet, rest and quiet are the particular things which will give relief. A doctor should have oversight of the sufferer.

Certain mineral waters have long been considered useful. Electricity, light and heat, when rightfully employed, help a good deal. Strapping an inflamed joint with adhesive does much to ease the pain.

The victim should take warning from the least touch of gout. He should begin at once to avoid those foods which are too rich in purines. Milk and all milk products are good. Eggs, bread, cereals, fruits and vegetables make a foundation diet which contains no purines.

Temperance in all things is good for everybody. Temperance in eating and drinking is essential in gout. Alcohol should be omitted in all cases.

Overeating has been the curse of every age. One of the penalties of prosperity is the danger of indulging the palate. Moderate eating should be the rule for everybody.

Answers to Health Queries

J. B. O. Q.—What can I do for a number of brown spots which have recently appeared on my neck and chest?

T. E. D. Q.—What causes bunions?

Smaller Hats—to Fit Coat Collars

Directed by AMOS PARRISH

In circle: Feather trimmed cuff hat

Lower square: A smaller brimmed hat

Below square: Chinese Mandarin type hat

New York, Dec. 2—Fashionable hats are growing even smaller. Why? Because collars on fashionable coats are big and stand-uppish, and big hats get in the way of such collars.

Watch these winter-costumed figures of women on fashionable avenues. See how high and close their collars are pulled when the wind blows. How they snuggle down into these collars when the mercury drops.

That is the women wearing small hats do. If the hat isn't small and its wearer cares anything about its shape—she knows she can't pull her big collar up high without crushing the hat. Which is exactly why fashion knowing women are wearing the small hat.

These small hats may have brims — turned down ones or turned up ones—or no brims at all. But brimmed or not, they don't go flying out in flares or sweeps to interfere with coat collars. They hug the head, fit close at the sides and back and are just as comfortable and becoming as they can be!

Just because hats are growing smaller, don't think for a minute they're any less interesting to look at—and wear. It's wonderful how many different little tricks and trims can be worked into their small area.

Smart Tricornes

Take the tricorne for instance —that little three-cornered affair that you see poised high on thousands of fashionable heads. Just the different angles at which the points are set are decorative.

Some of them tip down at one side to give the diagonal line you've seen in so many hats this season. Some have the middle point right in the center, like the tricorne in the sketch, while others off-center it to one side or the other.

A small hat you see often with the Russian type coat is the one that looks something like the hats of the Russian priests. We've had one sketched in the large square. This is made of fur—which makes it even more Russian in feeling—but it's quite as fashionable in soft felt.

Chinese Hats

Chinese hats. They're in fashion, too. And they're small. Like the Chinese mandarin's cap, they sit well up on the head, with a cuff deep enough almost to hide the crown. One of these is shown at the lower right of the illustrations.

Incidentally, hats with cuff brims—that is, the brims that turn sharply up all around—are one of the most-in-fashion of these smaller hats. There are lots of them and lots of different kinds. One of the more unusual types is shown in the circle, with the cuff cut to make a peak over the forehead.

All sorts of small felts are in fashion. They're manipulated to make them fit close to the head and to give them decoration as well. One good type is sketched at the top of the illustrations.

Trimmed Hats

Even if you feel you must have a hat with a turned down brim, you'll find it in these smaller type that are made to fit the coat collar.

The brim comes snug to the neck in back so the collar can be turned up over it. The one we've shown in the lower square has a brim that goes both down and up—in the manner of some of the larger flare-away brim hats—but shortened on the sides so as not to interfere with the collar.

Feathers trim a lot of these smaller hats—a tiny brush, feather balls, or some sort of feather fancy. Fur is another favorite in bands or balls.

Christmas a Word of Beauty

By MRS. BEECKMAN.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it incorrect to write "Xmas" instead of "Christmas" on Christmas cards? A friend of mine said that [illegible]

[illegible]

This extends too to the word "and" in the union of Christmas and New Year. Instead of writing the sign of "and" (&) it is very much better to spell out the word. Therefore send "Greetings for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year."

An Obsolete Phrase

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am writing you to see if you [illegible]

[illegible] The use of [illegible] is appropriate when for instance a young boy answers an older man but except with people who have been brought up to use the mark of respect of this kind, [illegible] is not used between people of the same relative [illegible].

In almost every case, the addition of the name of the person to whom we are speaking is better than the use of "sir" or the "ma'am." And this is true for people of all ages. "Yes, Mrs. Allen." "No, Mr. Green." This [illegible] children [illegible] "Yes, Mother." "No, thank you, Father." "Yes, thank you, Mr. Armstrong." "I don't know, Miss [illegible]."

Delivering the Christmas Gift

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Please tell me whether when giving a young man friend a Christmas gift it should be sent to his home or handed to him.

I. M.

[illegible] Much of the molasses on the market has had so much sugar removed in the manufacturing process there is sometimes a bitter taste left and the molasses is very dark in color. Such molasses cannot stand high baking heat without burning.

BROKEN RAINBOWS

By May Christy

The air was balmy . . . warm . . . and from the house came romantic strains of music. It formed an undertone to Myrtle's soft-toned queries . . . a sort of running accompaniment.

She was making headway with this man. She'd tried for months. But tonight seemed the first real opportunity.

The fact that he was literally tied by the leg . . . that he'd hurt his ankle on the golf course today and so was unable to dance, and she could therefore have him to herself . . . was a great asset.

Clever Myrtle

Held Logan's Interest

An ill wind that blew nobody any good? Myrtle, whose turn had come at last, was in great good fettle.

She had prepared herself for just this hour. She'd had to study her role a bit, for Myrtle was not naturally endowed with much grey matter.

But she had heard of Logan's visit to the Town Hall lecture with Wilda Gardner. Knew of Logan's interest in certain deep-sea discoveries and scientific matters.

So she had gone the length of skimming through the chapters of his pet explorer's latest book . . . quite a technical volume.

Logan responded to her lead. She let him talk. Interspersed a few comments, and listened raptly, ecstatically, as though he were the original spellbinder.

"Go on. It's too marvellous. I'd no idea, Logan, that you were so adventurous at heart . . . and at the same time so . . . so very learned."

"I'm not boring you, am I?"

"Boring me? Heavens! I could listen all night—" breathed Myrtle rapturously.

The "you" and "I" bits had been regrettably missing from their conversation.

And already Logan was giving looks towards the house and at the couples who were coming and going, as though he were expecting a special "someone."

Was it Wilda Gardner?

Her ruse had worked okay. But it was not her intention that this glorious June evening should be devoted entirely to a dissertation on deep-sea fishes and Central American flora and fauna.

Indeed, no! She'd kept him glued to her side, partly by his lameness and partly by her tactics . . . but soon she would switch their talk to something more personal.

But looks weren't everything when it came to landing a clever, worthwhile chap like Logan. He liked intelligent girls, and one couldn't get by with him, as with the other men, merely by smart dressing and flirting and kidding.

No. He expected more. Tonight she was giving it to him.

Myrtle had sufficient sense to throw a mist over the pool tonight—not let him gauge the shallowness of her intelligence.

The "will to please" . . . "the art of being liked! . . . "how to hold a man" . . . "how to win back love" . . . these were the features which were her mental diet in the newspapers.

And they'd served her too. Avid for flattery, crazy for attention and the subjugation of the male, Myrtle had read a great deal on the subject, and observed a lot and profited by it.

So many girls missed out by being brusque, or assertive, or snubby. Or known-it-all already, when a man wanted to hold forth. Or acting bored when he was riding his hobby.

She knew her cues. And tonight she was well all out to fascinate him.

"I think you're wonderful," she breathed at first opportunity, and her voice was soft and sweet, like music. "I can't think how you manage to make such a success of your work down town, at the same time learn so much about outside things—"

It did. He laughed, well pleased. "That's what they say about you, Myrtle . . ."

"I?" in a streak of moonlight filigreeing through the branches overhead he saw her eyes widen in astonishment.

"Come now, you can't deny it."

"I'm not denying anything." She pouted prettily, but was cute enough to let the pout vanish immediately. "I'm having a marvellous time listening to you. That's all. And I'm not going to deny it."

Not Denying

Myrtle Was Cute

He tried again to catch a glimpse of her face in the uncertain moonlight. A pretty girl, this Myrtle . . . yet he had always thought her rather stupid.

And all the time she had been interested in things he would never have dreamed of her knowing!

When she'd run into him the other day and asked him to escort her to Coral's party, he had felt "caught" and annoyed. It had really been his intention to ask Wilda Gardner.

Indeed, that very morning he had telephoned to Wilda.

She hadn't called him back. Had this legacy her mother boasted of turned Wilda's head? . . . or was that head too full of the forthcoming trip to Europe?

To meet the right kind of people. Perhaps Mrs. Gardner had already instilled some of her new worldliness, her snobbishness, into her daughter.

November Has Bequeathed a Mixed Legacy

Some Developments Helpful, Others Disappoint, but Hope Rises

By D. C. FORBES

New York, Dec. 2—November has left a mixed legacy. Eyes and hopes are now [illegible] toward Recovery Year. Next December should find conditions much more satisfactory.

* * *

B. C. Forbes

The month just ended, while in many respects disappointing, did bring a number of encouraging developments.

Apart from grains and iron, new low prices were not registered by commodities, whereas October brought [illegible] for the year. New York Stock Exchange [illegible] the month [illegible] points over after [illegible] vigorous recovery in the second and third weeks of the month. Bonds also are [illegible] than a month ago.

Retail trade has been and still is only so-so. Commercial failures are numerous. November brought an unusual number of bank failures, especially in the South, a not astonishing happening after a whole year's depression and falling prices. Bank [illegible] have afforded no encouragement. Neither have [illegible] financial [illegible] [illegible].

* * *

On the other hand the marking up of copper and the maintaining of a price appreciably above the year's minimum, has helped sentiment. So have the indications that leaders of the iron and steel industry are getting the price situation under control. Influential endeavors to prevent further demoralization in sugar prices are being watched with [illegible] announced burying of [illegible] sentimentally [illegible].

The [illegible] one thing to create better feeling throughout the country. The pessimists have been uttering dire prophecies of what would happen in many places this Winter. Now the general feeling is that the situation will [illegible] through [illegible] measures.

* * *

Although [illegible] is being [illegible] that if powerful bear [illegible] refrain from fresh attacks the market can at least hold its own. [illegible] voluntary liquidation has [illegible] generally believed. Admittedly, there is no broad demand [illegible] no eagerness to buy [illegible] when prices are moving [illegible] when they are moving up. [illegible] tumble probably [illegible] liquidation [illegible] advance probably [illegible] investment buying.

New Year [illegible] brings very large amounts of money for reinvestment. Despite conditions, year-end dividend disbursements will probably reach an unprecedented total because of the $5,000,000,000 in new financing done this year. Also not a few extra disbursements are being made by companies financially able to do so.

* * *

Quiet [illegible] among the heads of Europe's central banks and Governor Harrison of the New York Federal Reserve Bank should bear fruit. The Bank of France at last seems prepared to take action designed to make more helpful use of its $2,000,000,000 of idle gold. Means may be found too, to use constructively some of our own stock.

* * *

COPPER SALES IN U. S. ARE REVIEWED

By FRANK H. MELOON

With the price of copper hovering between 11 and 12 cents a pound, as compared with April's figure of 18 cents, consumers are reported [illegible] turning to the "everlasting metal." [illegible] electrical companies like Westinghouse and General Electric are the major consumers, using 21 per cent of the red metal. The power companies use 17 per cent. Telephone and telegraph interests use 12 per cent. Automobile manufacturers consume 15 per cent and the building trades take about 6 per cent.

* * *

When the red metal was pegged at 18 cents, the utilities turned to substitutes, a course which helped to tumble the price. Hundreds of miles of wire were put up by one New England power company using a substitute for copper. The menace of substitute has undoubtedly been a major factor in preventing a more rapid recovery in the copper market.

* * *

President John E. Edgerton of the National Association of Manufacturers [illegible] Boston [illegible] speaker at a [illegible] of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts, is among those who oppose an extra session of Congress. He believes it would delay business recovery and return of normal employment since it would bring a period of uncertainty like that which prevailed while [illegible] was in the making. Stock market interests apparently look without fear upon the present session taking the ground that both parties will unite in favor of constructive actions, if any.

Brazil growers failed to act on realization that nation did not have a monopoly of coffee production. Now the government of the Gold Coast Colony is raising the export duty on cocoa just as announcement is made that West African growers are holding back a good part of the [illegible] production, [illegible] higher prices. Brazil, [illegible] on the [illegible] marketing cocoa in [illegible] World market [illegible] products on the [illegible] as poor, from the growers' standpoint, as it could be, and with political interference aggravating the situation.

The world of stocks and bonds introduced and popularized statistics and for a time they were [illegible] the key to all financial [illegible] problems. The stock [illegible] crash last year took away considerable of their popularity, because it was suddenly discovered [illegible] could be misleading [illegible] statistics could be—and were wrong.

* * *

The trouble does not lie with statistics of [illegible], but with their degree of completeness and application. We are told, for example, that motor car deaths in Massachusetts for the period ended last week were four in number below the total for the like 1929 period. This is commented on as a sad record.

* * *

Tax Commissioner Long's statistics however, reveal the further fact that automobilists have covered more miles of road in every consecutive month this year than in the like month of 1929. If statistics are to be applied logically, this would mean that automobilists have a very good record for 1929 to date, since increased mileage could be expected to mean increased accidents just as it certainly means increased hazards.

* * *

The practice of basing motor accident percentage figures on the rate "per 100,000 population" may be convenient but is hardly convincing. The statistics afforded thereby might be more nearly correct if the automobile mileage traveled in all sections were the same, and if numerous other conflicting factors could be equalized.

The feeling Mr. Edgerton has against an extra session of Congress is not everywhere shared in State st. In fact, a considerable division of opinion about the need of an extra session exists there. Some leaders say that the need of an extra session will depend largely on what is accomplished by the current session.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

Generally speaking the market has not been anticipating anything sensational from the President's [illegible] message [illegible]. However it has been [illegible] forward to some concrete suggestions perhaps with respect to such vital considerations as rail road consolidations, public utility regulation and the anti-trust statutes.

Soliciting U. S. Steel's Holders

Until recently U. S. Steel's quarterly reports accompanying dividend checks gave shareholders nothing except a mere compilation of earnings. It is a poor home that does not use something made directly or indirectly by U. S. Steel—stoves, wire, pipe, cement, automobiles, copper, nails, fencing, tin ware, pots, pans and dozens of other objects. Figure the consuming power of nearly 200,000 prosperous shareholders.

The statement of U. S. Steel for the third quarter gives a list of products of the various subsidiaries prefaced by a short article entitled "Building for Dividends," which says:

"Stockholders benefit wherever and whenever products of corporation companies are used. Encouraging the use of these products on projects in which they or their friends may be interested, helps the corporation and thus furthers the stockholders' interest. As construction goes forward on these many developments, dividends are being built, for the demands of construction help to maintain operations in the plants."

Stocks Reaching Stronger Hands

That stocks for a year or more have been passing from weak to strong hands is reflected in record gains in shareholders of big corporations. In November Pennsylvania R. R. reported a new high of 222,401 shareholders, an increase of more than 20,000 over the preceding month's record, and 41 [illegible] of November, 1929. Yet Pennsylvania [illegible] off nearly 33 points [illegible] of the year. [illegible] [illegible] that will make [illegible] when market conditions [illegible] more normal.

Brokers' Loans at Small Ratio

Brokers' loans are now close to $2,000,000,000, less than the assets of the Steel Corporation, and less than half the combined assets of the Bell Telephone system. The ratio of brokers' loans to market value of the 1200 stocks traded in on the New York Stock Exchange is below 5 per cent.

COPPER PRICE IS ADVANCED TO 11½ CTS.

Although only one custom smelter sold the metal at 11½ cents, the trade reported that there was no copper available under that level.

The [illegible] cent increase represented two advances of ¼ of a cent each by custom smelters today as some metal was sold at 11¼ cents shortly after the opening of business.

Meanwhile [illegible] larger producers were [illegible] to [illegible] their copper at 12 [illegible] a pound, making [illegible] abroad through Copper Exporters, Inc., which continues to quote 12.30 cents a pound, c.i.f., European base ports.

Foreign sales this morning were estimated roughly at 1,750,000 pounds, while 2,250,000 pounds were sold abroad yesterday.

New Financing

Milford, Ct. will receive bids until 10 a. m. December 21, for $85,000 [illegible] per cent school building bonds dated January 1, 1931, and due 1932 to 1940.

Will Build Railroad He Must Give to Government

Washington, Dec. 2—Decree has been granted to M. Girod, Paris engineer, for the right to exploit a forested area, covering approximately 200,000 hectares, located in the circle of Sassandra in the Ivory coast, says Assistant Trade Commissioner Earle C. Taylor, Paris, in report to Department of Commerce. Girod is required to build 125 kilometers of track at his own expense. At expiration of the concession, the railway will be property of the colony without charge of any sort.

Curb Market Goes to Higher Level

New York, Dec. 2—On a larger turnover the curb turned higher today. Prices drifted during early trading but better response to buying than to selling sent the market upward in the afternoon.

Bangor Utility's Income Is Larger

Bangor Hydro-Electric Co. reports for 12 months ended October 31 net income $650,614 after taxes, interest, depreciation, etc., against $575,521 in the preceding 12 months.

STOCKS HIGHER AFTER HOOVER MESSAGE

The list threw off a spell of heaviness in the first hour and crept higher until early afternoon.

GAINS ARE MODERATE

That lasted only a few minutes, and then the list eased off, losing about half its gain, until the strength of the steels tilted the market upward in the last hour. Gains, however, were mostly small.

Trading was sluggish, the day's turnover aggregating only 1,600,000 shares, but that was about 500,000 more than yesterday's extremely small turnover.

U. S. Steel gained 2½ points. Bethlehem, Otis Steel, Vanadium and McKeesport Tinplate gained a point or more.

Air Reduction, Allied Chemical, Johns Manville, Continental Baking A, and Underwood Elliott sold up 2 to 3, and International Business Machined gained 6 points.

WELCOME SUGGESTION.

If Wall Street had been in a bullish frame of mind, the suggestion that anti-trust laws be changed to conserve natural resources and prevent wasteful competition might have been greeted with enthusiasm.

Efforts of the copper and oil industries to stabilize prices have been cautious, owing to the danger of running afoul of the Sherman law.

Strength in the steel issues seemed to reflect fresh rumors that large producers were planning an advance in quotations for the first quarter of 1931.

The coppers moved up a little here and there, as at least one custom smelter sold the red metal at 11½ cents, against 10½ last week, and trade circles were even more optimistic over the outcome of the efforts of large producers to stabilize the price at 12 cents.

RAIL SHARES FIRM

The rail shares firmed a little, but reports that one of the four Eastern trunk line systems had withdrawn from the recent merger negotiations was a disappointment to traders looking for early developments in that quarter.

Although recent reports that Bethlehem Steel was negotiating for certain independent companies in the Pittsburgh area had been discouraged at the Bethlehem offices, they bobbed up again on the basis of a report that a Bethlehem official had been conferring with officers of McClintic Marshall.

The early downturn seemed to be influenced by a sharp break in Mack Truck, which sold off 5 points in response to expectations of the dividend reduction. The actual reduction, from a $6 annual basis to a $4 basis, however, was less severe than expected by some, and the stock regained its loss.

100 Stock Little Lower for Month

Market value of 100 representative common stocks decreased $405,615,000, or 1.7 per cent in November, according to Frazier Jelke & Co. The 100 issues at the end of the month were appraised at $23,020,042,000 compared with $23,425,657,000 on Oct. 31. This compares with $34,857,697,000 at the end of March, $24,274,384,000 on Nov. 13, 1929, and $43,447,945,000 on Aug. 30, 1929, peak of the bull market.

As compared with the 1930 peak the group has declined $11,837,655,000. It is selling for $1,254,342,000 less than at the extreme low of November, 1929, and for $20,427,912,000 less than at the 1929 high.

ADVICE TO INVESTORS IS FREE

Before you buy or sell stocks or bonds, you ought to secure unbiased expert advice. Send your investment inquiries with stamp to Frank H. Meloon, Financial Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston. All replies made by mail direct.

A SPECULATION

Miss A. H., Weymouth—I should like some information on Continental Motors. What do you think of a purchase of the stock?

gasoline motors. The stock, however, is a speculation. It pays no dividends. Quarterly payments of 20 cents a share, maintained from second quarter of 1924, due January 30, 1930, was omitted because of unsatisfactory earnings. For fiscal year ended October 31, 1929, earnings were 33 cents a share, compared with $1.02 in 1928. For six months ended April 30, 1930, a deficit of 42 cents a share contrasted with net income of 28 cents a share for similar period of 1929. In a letter to stockholders, dated October 29, 1930, the president said report for fiscal year ended October 31, 1930, would show heavy losses. We could not advise you on speculating. When you want an income from securities, however, we can be of assistance.

CAN PAY DIVIDENDS

F. H., Revere—I own seventeen shares American Telephone & Telegraph at higher levels. Is the dividend secure?

Ans.—American Telephone & Telegraph ought to earn the $9 dividend with a good margin, inasmuch as earnings for nine months ended Sept. 30 were $8.13 a share. Last year's net equaled $12.67 a share, compared with $12.11 in 1928, and $11.76 in 1927. The company, the world's premier public utility enterprise, has paid dividends for more than forty-six years; current rate from third quarter of 1921. In the past twelve years stockholders have received valuable "rights" for the acquisition of more stock. Don't pay too much attention to minor fluctuations.

SAVED $7,000

M. O., Malden—I am a middle-aged salaried man, with three dependents. I own my own home, partly paid for and have about $7,000 in savings bank. How can I increase my income?

Ans.—In guaranteed first mortgages you will find the protection and income you need. Investing the sum of $2,500 in Prudence Company 5½s and a similar amount in Title Guarantee & Trust 5s will give you an annual income of $262. Keep the other $2,000 in the savings bank.

$2,000 TO INVEST

Miss M. O., Brockton—I am self-supporting and have saved $3,000, of which I want to invest $2,000. I must be conservative.

Ans.—In guaranteed first mortgages you will find the protection and income you need. Investing the sum of $2,000 in National Mortgage 5½s will give you an annual income of $110. They are first-rate guaranteed mortgage certificates maturing in ten years, but holders are privileged to call them within three years.

AMOUNT INSUFFICIENT

B. K., Brookline—I received your letter asking the amount I had for investment, omitted from my former inquiry. I have $1,000 in a savings bank and want to buy a dependable stock.

Ans.—While there are many standard stocks upon which you could depend for a regular return, you would not materially increase your income. Continue with the savings bank until you have $2,500. Then investment would be worthwhile.

SHOULD HAVE MORE

Miss L. A. Canton—I am self-supporting and have saved close to $500, which I want to invest. Please suggest a good stock or bond.

Ans.—There is no need to invest $500. You wouldn't materially increase your income were you to buy a standard security. Don't become discouraged; save something regularly. When you have $2000 or so, get in touch with us again.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

Why the government should immediately pay soldiers' adjusted service certificates in cash.

If this debt was paid like all other government obligations have been paid and like an individual is required to pay his debts, these men would have a sufficient amount to go into business for themselves, to make the first payment on a house.

I have received in the last eight months letters from vets all over the U. S. They say if they could get this money they would be able to pay up their taxes and finish paying for their farms and homes, whereas employment in the country today is so unsteady these boys will lose everything if nothing is done for them.

None of this money would be hoarded. All of it would be placed in circulation at once. Business would be helped and the welfare of the public promoted. By withholding payment the government is making millions of dollars annually loaning the ex-soldiers their own money. The ex-soldiers' adjusted service certificates do not represent a bonus, it represents a debt the government has confessed is due for adjusted pay based upon service rendered. The government is giving the soldier 4 per cent interest for his own money, but charging him 6 per cent interest compounded annually for every dollar of his own money loaned to him, never giving him a sufficient amount in a lump sum to be of real assistance.

Now why don't every veteran that needs this money at once write their Congressmen and let them know that they want it, and make them help support the certificate bill of the Hon. Wright Patman of Texas? Don't sit back and let one or two men do your work for you, give us a little help.

Some Odd Facts About Bay State Governors

Editor Boston American:

Governor-elect Joseph B. Ely of Massachusetts is the only governor of this State who holds the record of teaching Sunday school class and president of a men's club. These official duties he exercised when connected with the Second Church, Westfield.

The first governor of this Commonwealth, John Winthrop, was married three times and holds the record among the governors for this distinction.

Gov. Andrews, War Governor, at his funeral had mourners following his casket, nine miles from his home to Mt. Auburn Cemetery, Cambridge.

Gov. Long held the palm for making the best short speech of any of his predecessors in office. So tradition has it.

Gov. Guild was the only governor in the United States that had bestowed upon him the degree of DOCTOR OF DIVINITY. This by the University of Geneva.

Gov. Douglas was the only governor who had his photograph his trade mark, advertising throughout the United States his shoe industry.

Gov. Eugene N. Foss was the first governor of this state in past history who was and is a total abstainer.

Vets Urged to Join Drive for Certificates' Payment

Editor Boston American:

I would like to hear from veterans from Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont on the Wright Patmen Bonus Bill which comes up before Congress in December. We have got to file plenty of petitions and write our Congressmen and tell them if we want this money and give them something to argue over. If all you vets from the New England states sit back and let one man do it all what do you expect Congress to do? Wake up and write to me for information in regards to this bill. I am willing to put in my-spare time and spare money—the least you vets can do is to write for petitions and circulars.

Wellesley Farms Station Removal Plan Hit

Editor Boston American:

As there is a movement under way to close the Wellesley Farms station on the Boston & Albany R. R., may I ask the influence of your paper to indicate the great inconvenience that would result from such action.

The railroad takes from this station over $3000 monthly. Its locality is a great accommodation to patrons living in Weston, Newton Lower Falls and adjacent places. Then there are real estate interests involved here that the discontinuance of this station would injure greatly.

The selectmen of the town of Wellesley already have registered their objection to this movement.

N. E. Council Thanks American for Coverage

Editor Boston American:

On behalf of the New England Council, permit me to thank you sincerely for the liberal and constructive coverage accorded the proceedings of the sixth New England conference by the American. DUDLEY HARMON.

Says Five-Day Week Is Due Very Soon

Editor Boston American:

Not so many years ago the average workman put in ten hours a day, six days a week. Gradually it developed into nine hours a day and finally for a great majority, it became eight hours with Saturday afternoon off making a forty-four hour week.

Reduction in hours has been brought about by faster output through improvements in machinery and greater efficiency. Development of better materials and higher degree of precision in tools and workmanship are resulting in large increases in rate of production.

Scientific and rapid progress of the mechanic arts are showing to a marked degree that output at full capacity during present working schedule is more than enough to supply the demand. The logical result will be that working hours can be further reduced and still supply the speed of production.

For reasons stated above the five-day working week will surely come very soon, and it doesn't seem improbable that even a four-day week will be in effect. For those who must work every day arrangements will be made by shifts so that all will work an equivalent number of hours per week in trades and occupations which are considered on a par with each other.

Four More Addresses Heard; Two This Afternoon and Two Tonight

Unemployment talks, which have utilized the radio in great proportions, of late, bound forward another step with the broadcast of four addresses today. Two of these addresses are heard on the air this afternoon and the remaining two will be broadcast tonight.

The first and probably foremost of these speeches is the reading in condensed report of President Hoover's annual message to Congress. This message, which deals in part with the problem of unemployment, is being read over an NBC-WEAF network at 12:15 by William Tyler Page, clerk of the House of Representatives.

Over the same network from 1:30 to 2:15 p. m. proceedings of the luncheon of the Women's Emergency Aid Committee for the Salvation Army are heard. Grover A. Whalen, general chairman of the Citizens' Committee for the Salvation Army, presides and Mrs Samuel Adams Clarke, chairman of the Emergency Aid Committee, is one of the speakers.

His Eminence Patrick Cardinal Hayes will address the radio audience from 8:15 to 8:30 tonight and his talk will be heard over an NBC-WEAF network. Cardinal Hayes will speak under the auspices of the Emergency Employment Committee.

The fourth unemployment program will consist of a talk by Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. As in the case of Cardinal Hayes, Gifford will represent the Emergency Employment Committee. He will speak from 11 to 11:15 p. m. in the fifth of the series heard over the Columbia chain.

Noted Couple

JULIA SANDERSON and Frank Crumit, who will be heard tonight over WNAC at 8 o'clock during the Blackstone program.

Concerning Radio

Edited by BILL WHIPPLE

Broadcasts originating in Europe and spanning the Atlantic through the medium of the short wave, have ceased to be front page news; they have become frequent during the past few months that listeners-in do not get quite the thrill from the distant programs as they received when it was a new accomplishment.

Nevertheless there is considerable kick left in hearing some announcer address his American audience, as you realize that his voice is being directed through a microphone situated in London, Paris or Berlin. We have not yet quite gotten over the wonder of it and still like to boast a little to the fellow commuters that we had such-and-such a station on the set last night.

In time very likely we earcuppers who have arrived at the arch-supporter-buying age will become as calloused and blaze to the miracle which is radio, as already the modern young hopefuls for whom life seems but a dreary experience, with everything commonplace, unexciting and devoid of kick.

However, for the benefit of those who are interested in across-the-water broadcasts, let us inform you that for this month of December some mighty fine programs will come through the ether. Four of them have already been definitely scheduled, originating in the British Isles, and which will be heard as scheduled, providing magnetic storms do not interfere.

The following programs will be picked up and re-transmitted in this country by the National Broadcasting Co.:

On Thursday afternoon of this week, at 3 o'clock E. S. T., there is to be a 65-minute concert by the Wireless Military Band. B. Walton O'Donnell will occupy the director's stand in London for this purpose.

Relays on Dec. 10 and 17 will bring to this country the regular BBC Symphony concerts. Both will originate in Queen's Hall, London, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, E. S. T., and are expected to last 45 minutes.

The Prince of Wales will be heard on Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 16. His speech, expected to last 20 minutes, will be delivered at a banquet in Guildhall, London, and will reach this country at 4:40 o'clock, E. S. T.

Perhaps It Is Fatima Herself

Tonight at 10:30 WBZ-WBZA are offering something from the Old World; a breath from the Orient, as it were. If bigger and better harems were possible Turkey would have had them. According to last reports, however, harems have gone out of style. It has remained with the Plymouth World Tour to preserve, through electrical transcription, the plaintive minor melodies of one of the harem songs, with tambour accompaniment, sung by a girl who might well have been an inmate of the last Sultan's household. Also will be heard the call to prayer, the bargaining and music of the bazaars.

GARLIC
"I AM BRINGING YOU A BREATH FROM THE ORIENT"

Over WNAC this evening at 10:30 o'clock you will hear Claudeine Colbert, stage and screen star, who recently returned from a world tour aboard a freighter. She will be interviewed by Jerry "Close-up" Madison, from the stage of the Paramount-Publix Radio Playhouse, who will ask questions about the personalities of the motion picture world, her own work and the high-lights of her world trip.

One man who can never be accused of being a "Babbitt" is the many times a millionaire William H. Woodlin, president of the American Car and Foundry Co. A penchant for musical composition is Woodlin's diversion and escape from business worries. This business executive has composed a book of children's songs, and his latest act was to write a group of songs of the salon type. These will be heard tonight for the first time over the WJZ circuit at 8:30 o'clock.

Half hour and hour dance programs on the air are the most difficult type of programs to vary. Although dancers never complain the average listener finds more than 15 minutes of straight dance music quite boresome, regardless as to who is on the playing end. Consequently the music moguls are at their wits end searching for something new. The Happy Wonder Bakers are one group that seem to concoct their offerings in such a way that few get "that tired feeling." A tenor, a trio and the singing violins offer sufficient diversion, and each week there is a special orchestra offering. Tonight (WEEI at 9:30) the special offering is the revival of five songs each of which was a hit of a former Ziegfeld Follies.

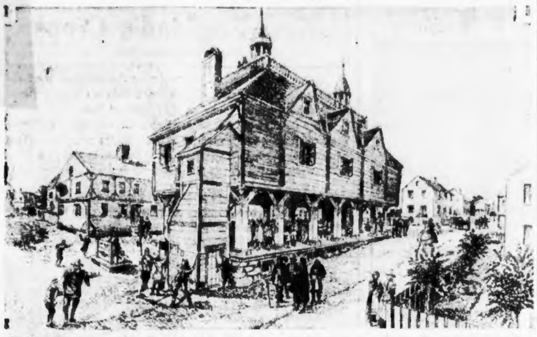
In Old Boston—No. 424

Massachusetts Tercentenary, 1930



THIS PICTURE of the First Boston Town House is from an original in the Old State House. The First Town House was built in 1657 and was destroyed in the great fire of October 2, 1711. It stood in or near the present site of the Old State House. The whipping post shown with punishment being inflicted was probably on Washington st. The stocks stood at the left. In the upper floors of the building courts and other town business went on, while within the arches below the merchants of the city traded. The designer and builder was Thomas Joy of Boston and later of Hingham. Bartholomew Barnard was associated with him. TOMORROW—Custom House.

PORT OF BOSTON

The White Star Line motor vessel, now being built in the Harland & Wolff shipyard, Belfast, Ireland, will be named the Georgic. The ship will be used Liverpool and Queenstown-New York and Boston service.

Announcement made by Gaillard P. Ravenel, manager of the Boston office of the International Mercantile Marine Co., who received a cable message informing him of the name.

The new Georgic will be a duplicate of the Brittanic. She will be 680 ft. long, 82 ft. beam, 43.9 ft. depth and upwards of 27,000 ton gross registry. She will have passenger accommodations for 1500 cabin, tourist third and third class.

WINTER PATROL

The winter patrol of the United States Coast Guard has started. Coast Guard cutters Tampa, Mojave, Ossipee and Acushnet have been designated for winter cruising in the New England division. Cruising will be maintained until April 1 or as long after that as weather conditions are hazardous to shipping. The Mojave, now on patrol, is temporarily in command of Commander J. A. Starr, while Commander Louis Bennett is in the hospital. The Tampa will be in charge of S. V. Parker. The Ossipee is in charge of Lieut.-Commander G. W. McLean. The Acushnet is in command of Chief Boatswain W. J. Jensen. Cutters will remain a week at sea and return for supplies.

FORCED BACK

Stricken while fishing in south channel grounds, Martin Dwyer, mate of the fishing steamer Cornell, was rushed home to Boston by orders of Capt. Patrick Collins. Dwyer was suffering from a throat ailment. It is not believed to be serious.

NEW PORT

Cuba's new port, the Porte of Presidente Machado, named after the present president of Cuba, sent its first ship to Boston when the steamer Thielbek, German, arrived here with a cargo of 16,162 bags of raw sugar for the American Sugar Refinery. The Porte of Presidente Machado was, before its recent change of name, the Porte of Sagua La Graude.

COAST GUARD

Recruiting for first and second class seamen in the United States coast guard, which was closed some months ago when the quota was filled, reopened with eight vacancies in the service to be filled for Base 5, East Boston.

Steam Seen as New Electric Source

New York, Dec. 2 (AP)—Steam threatens to become the great electric power source of the future despite governmental efforts to encourage water power development, the American Society of Mechanical engineers was told today.

Frank E. Bonner, executive secretary of the Federal Power Commission, said popular notions about the advantages of water power have been largely dispelled by large production of cheap fuel supplies and low cost of their distribution.

State Should Finance Aid for Unemployed

Legislature Will Have No Excuse for Delay

A committee of distinguished businessmen in New York City will appeal to President Hoover and the national government to authorize and promote a billion-dollar government loan for relief of unemployment on the same theory that the government floated the famous Liberty Loans during the war.

By providing for tremendous construction projects, such as highways, public buildings, flood control and river and harbor improvements, this loan would supply work promptly for many thousand men now idle.

The committee points out that public improvements of a permanent character would be undertaken, the cost of which would be spread over a number of years without any substantial increase of taxes in any one year. The present and future generations would together pay for these benefits which would be enjoyed by both of them.

Unemployment and business depression constitute a catastrophe which costs businessmen, investors and wage-earners a billion dollars a month, by conservative estimate.

A country which promoted many billions of loans to avert the ultimate disaster of a war can afford to issue at least one billion of loans to save its people the savage suffering of peacetime.

By putting people to work it would not only avert the suffering of the Winter; it would create a productive wealth and consequent taxable value which soon would more than liquidate the entire cost of its investment.

The Boston Evening American has urged that the same process of a State loan for the stimulation of business and relief of unemployment be inaugurated in Massachusetts. Governor-elect Ely has advocated that project in the first formal address since his recent election, and in what was the ablest and most constructive of his career.

The same arguments proclaimed by the committee of distinguished New York businessmen in behalf of the national project are applicable in every theory and in every detail in Massachusetts. We expect that the incoming Legislature will be moved by them and will assume its obligation without delay or quibbling at a time when speed and progress are essential to the welfare of the people of this State.

English

The World Language

Not French, German, Spanish, Italian, Chinese, nor Esperanto, but English, will be the world language of the future, philologists predict. There are many reasons for the belief. You may be interested in a few.

First, English is the simplest language except, possibly, Danish. Second, it contains more foreign words than any other. And third, it is spoken by more persons—220,000,000 to be exact.

Films, advertising, travel and business have spread English so widely that you can now go almost anywhere on the globe with no other language and be inconvenienced but little. English is today what Latin was in the middle ages. It is only a question of time when every foreigner will have to learn it in addition to his own.

He may not want to, but unless all signs fail he will have no choice.

Listen, World!—Life

By ELSIE ROBINSON

A Door Half Opened, Half Closed

THIS LINE in the ads caught me—"The door was half opened—yet half closed—and he was afraid."

That's life. Always we're facing a door that's half opened and half closed and wondering which side to choose.

Elsie Robinson

Long ago we began that. Began it when we were cavemen, peering cautiously from the narrow crevices of our dens. Our caves were cold and we were hungry. There before us lay the jungle. The jungle was like a great door that opened into all we needed. There was food in the jungle and warm furs and riches and a mate. But there was also danger. That was the "closed" side of the jungle door. There were wild beasts in the jungle and hostile tribes and mysterious diseases. The jungle invited—but the jungle also repelled. Should we go in? Or should we stay out? That was the question the jungle put up to us. And a man's test lay in his answer.

Life is a door half opened, half closed. With each new day we meet that challenge afresh. Shall we go in? Shall we stay out? There's the test of the stuff that's in us.

Most of us waste years waiting for life to open its door full. But life never will. he perfect opportunity—the opportunity that carries no risk with it, no inconvenience or pain—never comes. Always the door is half shut as well as half open. Always there are as many reasons against doing a thing as there are reasons for doing it.

And they're excellent reasons—"safe and sane" reasons that will rationalize any cowardice or selfishness or stupidity. If you're really afraid to go in through that half opened door, you have a thousand alibis—probably applaud them. For we're all cowards at heart.

On the other hand, if you decide to go in, you may not be able to offer one high-proof argument in your defense. And people will boo you, and get mad at you, because your courage makes their cowardice seem contemptible.

Well, which are you going to do—go in or stay out? Play it safe or take a chance?

That's the question that faced the caveman. That's the question that is facing you, in the dark, narrow cave of yourself. The cavemen that went into the jungle found plenty. But they also paid plenty for finding it. They knew pain, and soon, certain death. But they also knew the thrill and glory of adventure. And they built civilization — although that probably didn't do them much good, being dead. But at all events, whatever there was they were in the thick of it. And, to some men, that's everything.

And the other cavemen, they chose safety. They passed up the adventures—but they also passed up the risks. And to some men, that's everything.

So there you are, with a door before you. No matter how rich you are or how poor you are, there's always a door before you. Half opened on opportunity. Half closed, against danger. Will you go in—or stay out? It's up to you.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

Plagiarism Among Writers

NEW YORK, Dec 2—The most difficult editorial problem of a wide-awake magazine is the prevention of plagiarism. In the past year, despite unusual vigil, two completely lifted stories with only titles and a few names changed were on the stands before deception was discovered.

In each case the tale had been paid for. One of them was so expertly written editors required the author to sign an affidavit he had written it from his own original idea. He signed blithely, and landed in jail. People with a writing itch take unusual chances.

Another ignoble fakery was discovered on a prominent monthly magazine after the periodical was on the press. One-third of of the run had been made when the presses were stopped and a quick substitution inserted. It cost the magazine thousands.

The biggest blow of such pirating falls upon struggling and unknown writers. When they turn out a finished and worthy story editors become suspicious and in instances actually refuse to take a chance. Thus only established scriveners may receive a hearing.

* * *

Perhaps the most frequently looted plot is that of Poe's "The Gold Bug." It has been printed in various disguises in some 20 magazines. Even today it often shows up in editorial shops as an original piece of literature. De Maupassant's story of the lost necklace has also been overworked by copyists.

There seems no way of stopping lifted yarns. Editors will always be tricked. One man or an entire staff cannot possibly read every story published. This impossibility makes trickery so easy. Often a swiped story will not be discovered until months after printing.

* * *

Writers abroad are the most flagrant violators. If they spot a good story in German, French or Polish they pay a few dollars to have it translated into English and post it to an American editor. If they are caught little could be done.

* * *

Often writers are unconscious plagiarists. They are struck by some stately verbiage or plot and long afterward it may pop into thought as something original. This is responsible for many honest craftsmen being accused unfairly.

* * *

An unusual coincidence in authoring took place in the old McClure's magazine 20 years ago. Two manuscripts arrived the same day—one from Maine and the other from Oregon. Save for two words the opening paragraphs of about 60 words each were identical. Investigation proved they were written exactly at the same hour hundreds of miles apart, which is a hair-lifter in thought transference.

* * *

There are often touches of the old town pump in the thick of Times Square. An apoplectic auctioneer was yowling in a jewelry shop near 45th st. As he paused in his red-faced earnestness for a higher bid, a dumpy little black bonneted woman stepped into the door and called out:

"Eddie, don't forget the chops on your way home!" He replied quickly: "All right, Ma," and went on with the sale.

* * *

I've been writing "at the top of my voice" for a year about jewelry that turns green in the summer time in Broadway gyp auction parlors. Since that time more than 30 more have opened and all do an increasingly flourishing business. That waning you hear is my influence.

The armor display at the Metropolitan Museum is always well attended. Strangely enough, it is a great attraction for rather timid, slim-shouldered young men who wear horn-rimmed glasses. They like to wander about, dreaming of the days when lances sparked and knights were bold. And go forth, no doubt, to attack a marshmallow fudge.

New England's Crops

Our Farms Doing Well

It has been stated in these columns recently that the facts give the lie to the ancient wheeze that stones is the most plentiful crop that can be raised on New England farms.

The fertility of New England soil, the productive genius of the local farmer and his ability to diversify his crops in the face of changed economic and agricultural conditions are now more fully demonstrated by the latest reports of the census.

In Aroostook County in Maine, where the livelihood of the people depends upon farming, agriculture not only has not declined but the value of land and buildings devoted to agriculture has increased from $56,000,000 to nearly $67,000,000 in the past five years.

Working livestock has been displaced by modern implements and machinery. The farming of delicate grains in the unsuitable northern temperature has been somewhat abandoned. And the specialized potato crop has doubled in ten years, making the extraordinary gain of 8,000,000 bushels per year the past five years. Sheep raising on a scientific scale promises much for Maine and other sections.

The soil of New England is peculiarly arable, when devoted to its most beneficent uses and cultivated by adroit hands.

The gains made in Aroostook example the progress that has been made in other products in the other sections of New England, and the agriculture of this section of the country is on a firmer and more profitable basis than in the Western fields constantly urging Congress for "relief."

With her industries diversifying and laying the ground for increased exports, with agriculture firmly entrenched and with her Summer resort business increasing abnormally, New England will be found in a favorable position when economic certainty displaces the depression that has existed.

Back to God

Science Discovers Its Limitations

Science, which has discovered much of importance, is now beginning to discover God. More accurately, scientists are discovering the limitations of science as an answer to the riddle of existence. They have found that reliance on it alone as the master-key to unlock the mystery is "unscientific." They are admitting—some of them reluctantly, others with vast relief—the necessity of faith.

This trend of scientific thought has been marked in recent years, but rarely has it found fuller expression than it did a few days ago in a radio broadcast in England and the United States by Sir Arthur Eddington, "the British Einstein." Millions of listeners heard it and were impressed. In an age of doubt and disillusionment, Sir Arthur's words were as refreshing as showers in a season of drouth.

He said:

> "When from the human heart the cry goes up, 'What is it all about?' it is no true answer to look only at that part of experience which comes to us through certain sensory organs and reply, 'It is about atoms and chaos; it is about a universe of fiery globes moving on to impending doom; it is about non-computed algebra.'
>
> "Rather, it is about a spirit in which the truth has its shrine, with potentialities of self-fulfillment in its response to beauty and right.
>
> "The spiritual element in our experience is the CREATIVE element. Reasoning is our great ally in the quest for truth, but reasoning can only start from premises. At the beginning of the argument we must always come back to our innate convictions. There are such convictions at the base, even of physical science.
>
> "Reasoning is not infallible when practiced by our blundering intelligence. It means a great deal to me to conceive of God as Him through whom comes power and guidance. We are not without this guidance when we embark on the adventure of spiritual life."

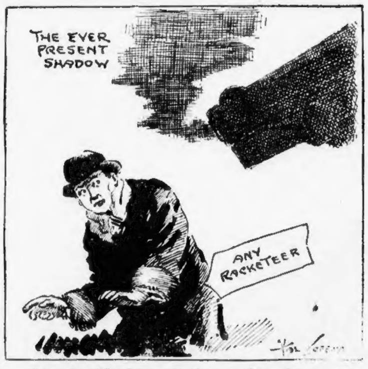
Puzzled and perplexed humanity, sorely needing assurance in these skeptical days, should find comfort in this splendid affirmation of faith from a quarter in which, formerly at least, faith was too often lacking.

Think It Over

Drawn by Hal Coffman



Unless you differ from most, there are times when you envy the racketeer. He has money, excitement and "publicity." He may not live long, but he lives fast. And when his life ends he is likely to have a fine funeral, with a gold-plated coffin, crowds of mourners and tons of floral wreaths.

His days are never humdrum. He is not tied to an office desk or a sales counter. He gets more than $25 a week. You might think that he would be happy—at least happier than you, who perhaps have to punch a time clock and work eight hours a day, six days a week.

There is an old Greek fable about King Damocles, who had everything he wanted, but still was unhappy. The reason he was unhappy was that the Fates had hung a sword over his head, suspended by a single hair.
